Negro Shot Attempting To Rob Filling Station. Youth Robs Store-keeper.

TWO BANDITS FLEE, LEAVING THEIR CAR

Three White Men and Wounded Negro Hunted By Police for Daring Robberies.

Bandits who sought to take advantage of the pre-Christmas rush to play their trade, Wednesday night fell ill at the hands of their intended victims and the police.

In an attempt to hold up a gasoline filling station, a negro highwayman was shot down and is believed to be severely wounded, and his white accomplice—whose identity police assert is known to them—was forced to flee leaving a high-priced automobile behind for officers to confiscate.

In another robbery, this time of an ice cream parlor, two white bandits secured only $17.50 in loot. Half a dozen persons watched them at work and supplied police authorities with an excellent description of them and their automobile.

In an attempt to rob the filling station of P. A. Webb at 59 Walker street, a negro said to be named Lindolph, was shot by Mr. Webb when he was surprised in the act of breaking a lock on a gasoline tank.

Two Men Surprised. The negro bandit and a white accomplice were surprised by Mr. Webb while attempting to break into the filling station. The white man was on the lookout, police were told.

Mr. Webb fired twice at the negro, both shots apparently taking effect, as the negro fell. He rose to his feet again, however, and made his escape.

An expensive automobile in which the alleged bandits drove up to the filling station was abandoned in the escape, and was taken into custody by the police.

Police claim that the white robber is well known to them as a bootlegger, and that the automobile belonged to him. All possible sources of medical aid for the negro were covered, and a dragnet for the apprehension immediately. Call Officers W. A. Cheving and John H. Crankshaw investigated.

In the second robbery of the night, G. E. Maxey, 15, of 159 Pulliam street, was standing in the ice cream store of D. B. Mezrah, at 318 Central

Firemen Save Sleeping Babe From Flames

Fireman Snatch Children From Burning Home at Montezuma.

Montezuma, Ga., December 2.—(Special).—A sleeping babe and several other small children narrowly escaped a horrible death by fire here this afternoon, when the fire broke out in the burning residence of E. H. Roberts by firemen, who rescued them, in the absence of the mother. Whipped by a stiff wind, the fire, which appeared to have originated in the roof, quickly enveloped the whole building. When one of the Roberts children gave the alarm that other members of the family were inside, firemen rushed into the rooms, amid the stifling smoke, and rescued the sleeping babe from the cradle and carried it, with the other children, to safety.

Mr. Roberts is the owner of the Montezuma Ten Cent company here. The house was owned by Mrs. J. T. Stillwell, of Atlanta. Some insurance was carried, it is said.

Coolidge Air Board Officially Rejects Plan of Mitchell

My Story of Atlanta

BY SAM W. SMALL

CHAPTER IV. The State Road.

When legislative action made it sure that the State Road would be built, Stephen H. Mitchell, the engineering, careful planner of the route staked by the turn road, promptly and wisely decided that no proper terminal was available on the south bank of the Chattahoochee river.

If branch lines to Athens, Forsyth, Madison, Milledgeville and Columbus were subsequently to be constructed, it was evident that they must converge on eligible ground somewhere between the river and Decatur. Looking over the terrain, the trained eye of the engineer found his ideal spot just where the hub of Atlanta has from its beginning and yet is.

As the location was practically uninhabited and had no name, Engineer Long picked one by which to identify it. Hardy Ivy lived so far away—nearly half a mile—that "Hardyville" or "Ivynow" did not obtain even a psychic suggestion. To the practical mind of the man of science, "Terminus," the Latin name for the end of a route, appeared appropriate, so Engineer Long appropriated it. Thereafter all talk and all papers referring to the end of the State road carried the name Terminus. And so the slowly creeping settlement was known until it became populous enough and ambitious enough to seek the order, laws and liberties of a corporation.

Proceedings of the sort, so novel and extraordinary in the times and the region, could not be kept under cover, had any one wished them to be hidden from the public eye. There was then no craze for land speculation or hunger for town lots, with values to be sky-rocketed by railroad advantages. Hardy Ivy, in fact, had bought his land lot for the pleasant price of 50 cents per acre. Round about the woods and on the red hills there were squatters who were occupying the state's lands without purchase, or paying ground rents, or even a "thank you" to the government.

Ivy, and many other locators of the time, preferred to buy their land rather than take a chance in land-lotting the state. But many others simply "staked a farm" and waited for a preemption to run in their favor.

News about the State road operations slowly percolated through the settled portions of the state and both curiosity and stirrings of cupidity brought many persons to "spy out" the situation. Most of those who viewed the primitive prospect with meticulous eyes saw nothing to charm them.

The big oaks on the hill where Terminus was located, sometimes

TARBUTTON DEATH CLAIM IS SETTLED

Judge Sibley Dismisses Litigation Over Insurance Money on Agreement of All Interests.

Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of federal court, Wednesday issued an order dismissing litigation involving payment of insurance policies amounting to more than $100,000 on the life of Gus A. Tarbutton, Washington county farmer who was killed last February by a shot from a gun fired by J. J. Tanner. Financial details of the settlement were withheld.

For the death of Tarbutton, his business partner, C. G. Rawlings, prominent Sandersville merchant and capitalist, and J. J. Tanner were arrested for first degree murder and both were convicted at trials held last summer.

When Tarbutton was killed it was asserted by Tanner that the shot was fired accidentally. A short time prior to Tarbutton's death, an insurance policy was taken out by the firm of Rawlings & Tarbutton, in which the life of Tarbutton was insured for $50,000 with a double indemnity provided in case of accidental death, making the claim $100,000.

According to Winfield P. Jones, attorney representing all interests, save those of the insurance company, the case was dismissed by Judge Sibley after an amicable agreement had been reached by those interested in the litigation. The interests involved were the firm of Tarbutton & Rawlings, the estate of Tarbutton and the interests of Rawlings. A receivership for the estate of Tarbutton had been granted, with L. B. Holt, of Sandersville, as receiver. The Prudential Insurance company resisted

Expansion of Military and Naval Aviation Urged, but Without Drastic Changes.

BETTER TREATMENT FOR FLIERS URGED

Board Unanimous in Opposing Department of National Defense or Unified Air Service.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER. (United News Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, December 2.—President Coolidge's aircraft board has issued its report which is intended to guide congress in legislation to foster the infant art of aviation.

Colonel Mitchell's basic recommendation for a separate department of the air is rejected. The board appears to have disagreed with him on almost every question.

Instead a long list of recommendations were made, all seeking to give greater recognition to aviation in the army, navy and civilian activities. Assistant secretaries of war, navy and commerce to give their full attention to aviation are recommended.

Urged Better Treatment. More generous treatment of fliers in the army and navy is urged. The army air service name would be changed to air corps. Fliers would be added to the army general staff and the office of chief of naval operations and the bureau of navigation. Special medals and ribbons for heroism in the air are recommended. Extra pay for flying and life and accident insurance are suggested. Use of enlisted men as pilots is urged. The government is urged in making airplane purchases to keep the flow of orders even and to standardize designs in order to assist the aircraft industry.

The board declines to accept Colonel Mitchell's alarming views of the aviation situation, denies the country is in any danger of attack from the air, and insists that the nation's air force is second only to that of France. It admits discontent among flying officers and suggests more liberal pay, promotion, military honors and greater voice in army and navy staff operations.

Rebuke Mitchell. What might be construed as an implied rebuke to Colonel Mitchell and others who have testified that fliers were sent up in dangerous planes is found in one section.

"No evidence of any such case has been submitted to us. It is clearly the duty of anyone having any such evidence to submit it to the proper authorities in order that those guilty of such a violation of the rules shall be severely punished. Particularly is this the duty of any army officer who has such knowledge. In the army the channels of protest are as well known as the channels of command and both are as old as the army itself. Any member of the air service who has knowledge that his brother flier is being forced into the air in unsafe planes and who fails to make direct and immediate report of the concrete case and facts to his chief is at fault to the extent that his knowledge is accurate."

CIVILIANS RETURN TO POWER IN SPAIN

Reign of Military Directorate Will End Today When New Government Is Sworn In.

Madrid, December 3.—(Thursday.) General Primo De Rivera, dictator of Spain since September, 1923, formed a "civil" government to succeed the military directorate today.

King Alfonso had authorized the formation of the new government a few hours before.

De Rivera remains at the head of the state in the position of president of the council of the new government. The other positions are divided among naval and military officers and civilians.

In a statement issued following the formation of the government today, De Rivera said that is form, but not its aims or character, had been changed.

De Rivera installed himself at the head of the government in 1923 by turning the existing parliamentary government out of office by a military coup. He immediately issued a long statement promising Spain that he would remain in office only 90 days, during which time he purposed to reorganize the internal administration of the state and to end the war in Morocco against the Rifians.

The last of the 90 days found De Rivera's task far from complete and he has remained in office.

DRAMATIC PLEA SAVES BRIAND GOVERNMENT

Half-Hearted Vote of Confidence Given Aged Premier Despite Financial Program.

GOOD OF COUNTRY IS HIS ARGUMENT

BY RALPH HEINZEN. (United News Staff Correspondent.)

Paris, December 3.—The chamber of deputies voted confidence in the new Briand government by 208 to 113 this morning, following a moving appeal from the aged premier that he be retained in power for the good of the country.

Interrupting the debate on the financial project of inflation, Briand demanded that the chamber proceed with the vote.

"For the first time in my life," he said, "I am hanging on to power. I am troubled in heart. If you overthrow me, you will commit a grave injury to the country."

Barely half the chamber applauded these words, but far more than half voted with the government.

Socialists Oppose Inflation. Immediately after the vote, Briand again made a point of confidence of Deputy Bokanowski's proposal to reduce the amount of the proposed inflation from 6,000,000,000 to 3,000,000,000 francs, and the chamber again expressed its confidence in the new cabinet.

The desperation with which the government sought support before the first confidence vote is indicated by the fact that even President Herriot, of the chamber, was prevailed upon to cast a ballot. He voted for the government. Chamber attaches could recall only one other president who had balloted in the chamber. He was Gambetta.

Briand was rather pleased with himself as he noted the effect of his impassioned plea for support. "I shook them up a little," he was heard to mutter. "They deserved it."

After deciding during a party caucus Wednesday night, to oppose inflation, the socialists again met to discuss the situation further, but ended by reaffirming their first decision.

Simultaneously, the opposition parties of the right assailed the government's financial program, and Briand, weary of the battle, challenged the chamber to approve his plans with a vote of confidence or to disapprove them, but to do one quickly.

Deputy Bokanowski, leading the attack on the financial program, condemned inflation and urged, instead, that the state tobacco monopoly be turned over to foreigners. He said a group of American industrialists had offered $300,000,000 for the monopoly.

Briand replied with his dramatic challenge to the chamber: "Think you that this government reduces its demands, it would find its prestige increased before the nation?"

"No! You don't think it, and tomorrow you will come and say that the government did not do what it had planned; that it surrendered on intervention in the chamber and thus is disgraced."

"You will say, 'Get out.' Eh, bien, I prefer you to tell me that tonight." Loucheur, the minister of finance, Continued on Page 5, Column 6.

Iowa Lass and Indiana Boy WIN OUT AGAINST 600,000 COMPETITORS America's Perfect Children

Chicago, December 2.—(AP)—Kings of the barnyard and field having been selected at the International Livestock exposition, the climax came tonight with the selection of the most perfect boy and girl in America.

Alice Burkhardt, 15, of Audubon county, Iowa, was chosen as the most perfect girl and George Cuskaden, 14, of St. Paul, Indiana, won the honors as the country's most perfect specimen of boyhood. The selections were made by competitive physical examinations of more than 600,000 farm boys and girls, members of the boys' and girls' agriculture clubs meeting here in connection with the exposition.

The healthiest boy and the healthiest girl from each state in the Union met here for the final examinations this week.

Alice Burkhardt scored 95.7 per cent. A slight cold from exposure to Chicago weather and too little muscular development of the arms were her only defects. The boy scored 97.7 per cent, his only flaws being one filled tooth, slightly enlarged nasal passages and a hardly perceptible tendency toward flat-footedness.

The girl is five feet five inches tall, weighs 131 pounds, milks the cows,

'MA'S' FOES PROBE BID ON $600,000 BOOK CONTRACT

Attorney General Holds Contract With American Book Company Improperly Executed.

FERGUSON, MOODY IN WAR OF WORDS

Husband of Governor Asserts That State Got Hot End of Poker in Highway Suits.

Austin, Texas, December 2.—(AP)—A textbook contract, worth approximately $600,000, and made by a subcommittee of the state textbook commission without "the advice or consent of the attorney general," and with Governor Miriam A. Ferguson sitting as chairman, promises to be a source of further contention between the woman governor and Attorney General Dan Moody.

Pending an opinion from the attorney general on the return of a $2,500 deposit made by the American Book company, Cincinnati, when bidding on the textbook contracts, a canvass is being made of the textbook commission members to learn whether the commission approves the action of the subcommittee in accepting the contract.

Improperly Executed. Because the secretary of the book company failed to have the anti-trust affidavit properly filled out prior to the textbook commission meeting, the attorney general held that the contract could not be properly executed. By a vote of two to one the subcommittee executed the contract, the form of which was drawn by Mr. Moody with the specific announcement that approval was given.

The contract, for six years, was the most valuable awarded by the textbook commission and was for the highest priced spellers offered, the commission announced.

Governor Returns to Capital. Governor Ferguson returned to the capital tonight from a two-day visit in Temple, her home town. She was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Dorrae, and her 5-year-old grandson, Ernest Nalle. Her husband, James E. Ferguson, met her at the train. Her stay in Temple was uneventful. While there she visited with friends, tended her flowers, paid her poll tax and did some Christmas shopping.

She spent practically all of this morning with a dressmaker. This afternoon, she received friends in the office of the Ferguson Forum, newspaper published by her husband. She would make no comment on state affairs.

James E. Ferguson, husband and adviser of Governor Ferguson, and Attorney General Moody renewed with vigor today their battle of statements centering about the contract let the American Road company by the Texas highway commission.

Ferguson, former governor of Texas, and veteran of a number of hard-fought political campaigns, scoffed at

Prices of French Titles Drop, $50,000 New Price for Counts

BY RALPH HEINZEN. Paris, December 2.—Bear raids have driven the matrimonial title market to a new low ebb in the history of the unofficial exchange and as a result more than two hundred French counts in Paris alone are willing to dispose of authenticated branches of their family trees for a paltry $50,000.

The slump of the franc and the wide publicity which has been given the divorce actions of American girls who chose to marry foreign titles are responsible for the market's collapse. The decline has been constant since the war.

Duchies and coronets for the first time in history are within the reach of the daughter of any moderately successful American business man but there are few bids. The end truth is that America has just about withdrawn from the French title market. A decade ago the American bidding was brisk.

It may be that Americans have become really democratic, or perhaps the war corroded the once glittering coats of arms, but it is a fact that fewer American girls are acquiring titles by marriage.

Before the war an American society matron with an eligible daughter, a neat fortune and a desire for noble connections came to the title market, which was Paris, and made her choice. Everything transpired quietly, frequently at a famous hostelry in the Place Vendome, where the business formalities were settled. In those days the signing over of $200,000 or so sufficed to acquire a count. The photographers and newspapers were advised of an impending wedding at the Madeleine or St. Philippe-du-Roule, and when all was ready the daughter of a Fifth avenue financier or of an Omaha packer took her place in European society as the countess of this or the duchess of that. Then followed columnar publicity and a season at Deauville or Monte Carlo.

Mother was satisfied, daughter revelled in her new glory and the count bought a few race horses, paid his debts or settled down for a campaign at the green tables. Now all is completely changed.

Allen To Prefer Charges Against 'Certain Fireman'

Declines to Divulge Name of Man Said To Have Shown Disrespect For Chief Cody.

As an aftermath to the heated political controversy developed during the campaign waged by city firemen on their salary increase referendum, the council committee on the police Wednesday, Councilman Orell G. Allen served notice at the meeting of the council fire committee Wednesday afternoon he would prefer formal charges against a "certain fireman" at the committee's next meeting two weeks hence, based on the fireman's alleged disrespect of Fire Chief W. B. Cody.

Councilman Allen declined to disclose the fireman's name, but it was recalled by members of the committee that E. A. Davidson, chairman of the firemen's referendum committee, had been suspended two weeks ago because of a statement construed as an attack on official acts of council members. He was later reinstated.

"I have in mind a fireman who has been disrespectful to Fire Chief Cody," said Councilman Allen. "When a man is disrespectful to the head of any city department, regardless of my personal feelings, I am in favor of putting him out of the city's employ."

"Chief Cody knew nothing of my plans to bring this matter to attention of the committee. I will be able to prove that this man has passed Chief Cody without speaking or giving any sign of recognition."

G. SCOTT CANDLER LEADS IN DECATUR

Present Mayor Leads Ticket in City Commission Election; Freeborn Gets Next Highest Vote

Decatur, Ga., December 2.—(Special).—G. Scott Candler, present chairman and ex-officio mayor of Decatur, led the ticket in the election held here today to elect two commissioners. He received 502 votes and succeeds himself. The other commissioner elected was W. W. Freeborn, with 449 votes, who succeeds E. L. Weekes, who was not a candidate for reelection.

The vote for the other candidates was: W. E. Barton, 189; S. L. Adams, 138; John Russell, 89.

Out of a registration of 2,000, a total of 700 votes were cast in today's election, which was spirited.

The two commissioners assume office for the new two-year term on January 1, the commission electing the chairman or ex-officio mayor.

Other members of the 1928-27 Decatur city commission besides the two elected today are: C. A. Matthews, J. R. Scott and R. C. Henderson.

5,645 APPROVE MEASURE; 2,063 VOTE AGAINST IT

All Officials Nominated At Recent White Primary Are Elected Without Opposition.

NO CHALLENGE OF RESULT SEEN

Eighth Ward Only One To Vote Against Firemen—All Others Roll Up Big Vote for Raise.

Sweeping 26 out of 29 precincts and 11 out of 12 wards in Wednesday's city election, the campaign of Atlanta firemen for salary increases was successful by vote of nearly three to one.

The complete vote, as tabulated by The Constitution, follows: For the ordinance increasing firemen's salaries: 5,645.

While voters overwhelmingly approved the firemen's increases, they also elected a ticket of city officials nominated in the September white primary. Rumors of eleventh-hour opposition to certain of the primary nominees proved groundless.

The total vote in Wednesday's election was 7,708. Approximately 18,000 citizens were qualified to cast their ballots.

The firemen's salary-increase ordinance went heavily in every ward except in the eighth, where two out of three precincts voted against the measure.

Complete ward votes were as follows: First ward—For 67; against 35.

MUCH ENTHUSIASM AT CHEST MEETING

Inspiring Talks Made at Gathering at Which Subscriptions of $21,631.75 Are Reported.

A greatly augmented attendance and increased life and enthusiasm marked the community chest luncheon Wednesday when subscriptions totaling $21,631.75 were reported, leaving a balance of approximately $210,039 to be raised to complete the chest fund of $666,000 for 1926.

The urgent need of more workers to solicit those prospects who have contributed to the chest in the past, but who have not been called upon this year because of lack of canvassers was again emphasized by J. M. B. Hoxsey, general chairman, and Eugene R. Black, one of the campaign leaders.

Inspiring talks also were made by San C. Dobbs, Major John S. Cohen, F. A. Wilson-Lawson and H. M. Atkinson, who were special guests of the luncheon.

Wednesday's reports were divided between the four divisions as follows: A division, 249 pledges for $7,262.25; B division, 286 pledges for $7,171.00; C division, 90 pledges for $3,358.00; D division, 218 pledges for $4,068.50.

All the groups showed substantial increases over the previous days of the week and the campaign leaders expressed renewed encouragement that the fund would be completed by the end of the week.

In introducing Mr. Dobbs to the chest workers, Mr. Hoxsey said he had just made one of the largest individual subscriptions to the chest, amounting to $2,500. Mr. Dobbs called the attention of those present to similar scenes in the Chamber of Commerce rooms during the war days, declaring that on one occasion Atlanta

HEYWARD NAMED SHERIFF BY COURT

W. I. Heyward, of Marietta, has been named by the Georgia supreme court as sheriff to succeed the late Sheriff J. W. Vaughan. It was announced Wednesday. Sheriff Heyward will serve the unexpired portion of Sheriff Vaughan's term, which expires on December 8, 1928.

Mr. Heyward is one of the older members of the Atlanta bar and is one of the best-known lawyers in this section of the state. He is a former lieutenant colonel of Georgia national guard, at the time of his service being the ranking guard officer for the state.

The death of Mr. Vaughan, two weeks ago, caused the first vacancy in the office of supreme court sheriff for 47 years. Mr. Vaughan having occupied the place for that time.

Sheriff Heyward was born in South Carolina. He was a student under General Robert E. Lee at Washington and Lee university and was there when General Lee died. He was one of the marshals at General Lee's funeral.

After graduation, Mr. Heyward moved to Atlanta to practice law, where he quickly attained a distinguished place at the Georgia bar. In later life, however, he retired somewhat from active practice, devoting his time to farming.

He now resides in Marietta, maintaining a law office in Atlanta, however.

He is a member of a distinguished South Carolina family, and his brother, Clinch Heyward, was at one time governor of that state.

STEEL FIRM LOCATES OFFICES IN ATLANTA

Location of southeastern division headquarters of the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel company, of Pittsburgh, Pa., in Atlanta was announced Wednesday through the industrial bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, by Frederick T. Newell, secretary.

C. R. Ford, district manager of the division, and J. E. Jackson, contracting engineer, will have offices in the Glenn building.

The Pittsburgh-Des Moines company specializes in the designing, fabrication and erection of steel structures, water tanks, large tanks, wireless towers, bridges, buildings and water supply systems for municipalities and railroads.

Newspaper Writer and Wife on Tour Urge Georgians To Build Good Roads

Magnificent "home on wheels" used by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schabel on a trip from Binghamton, N. Y., to Florida. Mr. Schabel is a newspaper correspondent for twenty newspapers in New York and Pennsylvania.

The traveling home is the most perfect thing of its kind yet devised. Mounted on a 1-ton Chevrolet chassis, it contains parlor, kitchen, dining room. Pullman berths make delightful beds, and there is every possible convenience, including electric lights, radio, phonograph, wicker parlor chairs, modern sanitary conveniences, gas heater, cook stove, perfect ventilation, etc.

The Schabels left Atlanta Wednesday afternoon on their way to Macon, the next leg of their trip to Florida.

Charles Schabel, correspondent for a string of twenty daily newspapers in central New York and Pennsylvania, passed through Atlanta Wednesday, accompanied by Mrs. Schabel, en route to Florida to study conditions there for his papers. He is traveling in a very modern "home on wheels."

He came through north Georgia by way of Hartwell.

"And there," he said, "the surprise hit us. Such roads."

He had to take a twenty-mile detour by way of Iler, he said.

"Of course, we were thankful it hadn't rained recently," he commented. "The road wasn't muddy, but bumpy—my gosh!"

Other Georgia towns through which he passed included Commerce, Jefferson, Winder, Tucker and Stone Mountain. Mr. Schabel had high praise for the stretch of road between Commerce and Jefferson. "It's fine, the best we've struck yet in Georgia," he said.

"But how we welcomed the asphalt when we got near Atlanta," he said. Then he had a little criticism for Atlanta itself, anent road matters.

Urges More Roads.

"Roads around Atlanta are beautiful," he said. "But a city this size ought to see that every highway within 25 miles is hard surfaced. It is a civic duty for cities to do this today, just as much as to see that their own streets and nearby roads are perfect. In fact, in this automobile age, a road 25 miles away from a city as modern and as big as Atlanta, is a 'nearby road.'"

Mr. Schabel describes his mission to Florida as a trip to study life and conditions there. Papers he represents have tens of thousands of subscribers who are vitally interested in Florida because they have invested there, he stated, and they want to "know more about the state where they have put their money."

Mr. and Mrs. Schabel started from Binghamton, N. Y., where Mr. Schabel makes his home, and writes for the Binghamton Press. They traveled by way of Gettysburg, down the Shenandoah Valley, through Roanoke and Elizabethton.

About the last named place Mr. Schabel is enthusiastic.

"That is the spot chosen for a new $17,000,000 unit of the Bamberger company," he said. "They are building a new silk manufacturing plant there which will employ 10,000 people. This is a German company, and they chose Elizabethton for their factory because it is the only place in America where they could find exactly the right water supply for their processes."

Trip in Mountains.

After leaving Elizabethton, came a long trip through the mountains to Asheville, N. C.

"Mountains, lush, rain and mud," Mr. Schabel describes that part of the trip.

The car in which the Schabels are traveling is one of the most palatial "homes on wheels" which has passed through Atlanta yet. It is constructed on a 1-ton chassis and any convenience of the home that it lacks isn't worth considering.

Each side lets down and forms a bed, just like a Pullman berth. There is a parlor, kitchen, dining room, etc. Beautiful wicker parlor chairs make a comfortable resting place for passengers and Mr. Schabel declared that he was enjoying the trip immensely.

"That is, except on three or four occasions in the mountains," he said. "That was when the road was so

YOUTHS CONVICTED ON BOOZE CHARGE ARE GIVEN CHANCE

Two 18-year-old Atlanta boys convicted of run running in the federal court Wednesday were given a chance to reform, mend their ways and take up honest and legal trades by Judge Samuel Sibley, who fined each one $200, but allowed them to pay $10 each with the stipulation that they are placed on probation for two years.

The boys are Bonner Craft, 32 Ridge Dale road, and L. G. Boozer, 25 Lowndes avenue.

The boys were captured November 12 near Dawsonville, Ga., with 128 gallons of whiskey in the automobile they were driving. The boys have been confined in jail since their capture and as this was their first offense Judge Sibley placed them on probation, which is allowed under a recent act of congress.

WORK OF REVENUE OFFICE PRAISED BY M'Lendon

High praise for the work of the new state department of revenue was voiced Wednesday by Secretary of State S. G. M'Lendon, in referring to the increase in revenue from the sale of state automobile license tags during the past two years.

"We are receiving approximately $800,000 more this year than we did in 1927," said Secretary M'Lendon. "A certain proportion of this, of course, is due to the increase in the number of automobiles owned in the state, but a lot of credit must be given the revenue department, under Commissioner John M. Vandiver, for the splendid work it has done in rounding up delinquent license taxpayers."

An interesting lecture on Florida by George L. Dick, orator and pioneer developer, who speaks at the Biltmore hotel tonight will be the feature of tonight's broadcast by WDBE, radio station of the Gilman-Schoen Electric company. A program of musical numbers will be given before and after Mr. Dick's lecture by citizens of Winter Haven, Fla., and prominent Atlanta entertainers. Richard Gordon, at the piano, will open the program at 8:15 with a number of latest hits and will accompany Miss Virginia Futrell, former prima donna of the New York Hippodrome.

The Winter Haven organization, a unique organization of vocalists from Winter Haven, will follow with several songs including the new Florida song hit, "Since Winter Haven Stole You Away."

Mr. Dick will be introduced by H. O. Worrall, division manager of the Haven Villa corporation. Florida, the Land of Sunshine, will be the subject of his lecture. K. W. Fertig, manager of the Atlanta division of the Haven Villa corporation, will relate a few interesting anecdotes of a tour of Florida's lake region, and the program will close with violin selections by Jan Rubini, director of the Howard theater orchestra.

MOTOR ASSOCIATION TO ELECT OFFICERS

Election of officers and board of directors, special reports of various committees and an elaborate banquet and entertainment will feature the annual meeting at 6:30 o'clock Monday night, December 7, of the Atlanta Automobile association at the Biltmore hotel.

Association officers expect the banquet meeting to outdistance all preceding annual meetings, both in attendance and in quality of entertainment.

A ban has been placed on speech-making. With the exception of a short business session preceding the celebration, the program will be given to the enjoyment and entertainment of the members.

The retiring officers of the association are: T. K. Johnson, president; C. M. LeRoux, first vice president; R. N. Reed, second vice president; C. W. Dobbs, third vice president; E. L. Brandes, fourth vice president; J. H. Moore, fifth vice president; J. M. Becker, secretary, and E. G. Beaudry, treasurer.

The annual report of the president, which will be mailed every member immediately following the annual meeting, will set out at length some of the achievements of the association during the year and will touch particularly upon those activities of direct benefit to the automotive industry.

By far the most outstanding work of the association, it is claimed, was its work during the two months session of the 1925 legislature, when six inimical bills introduced before the legislature were killed, with four

PEN MAKERS SEE PUBLICITY STUNT IN LOCARNO SIGNING

London, December 2.—An unidentified manufacturer of fountain pens has the advertising stunt of the decade at his command if he can but get a look at the pen with which Foreign Minister Benes, of Czechoslovakia, signed the Locarno treaties Tuesday.

Each of the signatories except Benes used individual pens furnished by the British, and immediately put them in their pockets as souvenirs. But Benes hauled out a gold fountain pen and used it.

CRESCENT LIMITED

The NEW and BETTER CRESCENT LIMITED

The story of the CRESCENT LIMITED, De Luxe all-Pullman train between New York and New Orleans via Washington and Atlanta, has been one of continued success and thorough appreciation by the traveling public since its inauguration.

In order to maintain the high standard of service adopted for this train, new equipment, the last word in Pullman construction, has now been received and placed in operation.

There is a Club Car for smoking and social enjoyment purposes. Valet service for keeping your clothes pressed. Sofas accommodating three persons and movable chairs, permitting parties of friends to improve their own circles for conversational purposes, just as you do in your own club or home; a buffet where soft drinks, cigars, cigarettes, etc., may be obtained; a library table with current magazines; also a writing desk with accessories.

When meal time arrives the dining car is perhaps the best most popular unit of service on a fast express train and this particular feature has been given special attention and amply provided for. Nice clean cars and good meals at reasonable prices.

The Observation Car is equipped with lounging room for women passengers, with a shower bath adjoining. Arrangements for the use of this bath should be made with the ladies' maid. There are magazines and a writing desk in the Observation Car. A telephone service is available at New York, Atlanta and New Orleans.

There is a ladies' maid in constant attendance on the train for service to women and children en route when desired. She is also a competent manicurist and will perform manicure service at a reasonable charge.

In its entirety the Crescent Limited from locomotive to observation car presents a picture of modern limited passenger service, good to the eye to behold and at once assures the traveling public of a smooth, fast ride, with on time arrival at terminals and also affords the comforts usually desired by a discriminating clientele.

In view of the superior facilities provided, a reasonable extra fare is charged on this train.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM

FLORIDA TERMED ASSET TO GEORGIA

Georgia is sure to reap many benefits in business and in other ways through the unprecedented development of Florida, according to George Is Dick, of Winter Haven, widely known lecturer and developer, who will deliver an address on conditions in Florida at the Biltmore hotel grill at 8:15 o'clock tonight. Mr. Dick's lecture will be illustrated by 4,000 feet of motion pictures showing scenes at Winter Haven and other Florida sections.

"For a short time northern and eastern business men thought of Florida as consisting only of Miami, Jacksonville, Palm Beach and Tampa, but today hundreds of thousands of people from all parts of the United States are passing through Georgia on their way to Florida," Mr. Dick says. "This continual influx of visitors into Georgia is bound to help the state and to expedite its growth by at least ten years."

Florida is the last frontier section of the United States, according to Mr. Dick.

"The development of all frontier states has been profitable to those who pioneered," Mr. Dick said. "The profits in Florida have been greater and more rapid because Florida is the only frontier in history that has been developed in an age of motor transportation under the powerful stimulus of modern advertising and scientific agricultural and commercial methods."

Other information about Florida and details of its development will be told by Mr. Dick in his lecture at the Biltmore.

HEARING ON FARE HIKE PROPOSAL SCHEDULED TODAY

Hearing on a petition for an increase of fares on the Stone Mountain line, filed by the Georgia Railway & Power company, is scheduled before the Georgia public service commission today.

Considerable opposition from patrons of the line is anticipated. State Senator Carl N. Guess will represent those who oppose increases.

The hearing originally was scheduled for November 15 but was postponed on request until December 1. The Chattanooga hearing on the proposal of that city to condemn street right-of-ways through the Georgia-owned railroad terminal property there, however, compelled attendance of members of the commission, and of Senator Glass, who is a member of the state W. & A. commission, and the hearing again was put off until December 3.

It is stated that the increases asked to the company will average about 10 per cent all along the line.

This hearing will hold added interest in that it will be the first at which commissioner O. R. Bennett will serve officially. Commissioner Bennett took office on December 1, succeeding John T. Boileau. Mr. Bennett has sat in at several hearings as an observer, but has never familiarized himself with the method of procedure of the commission, but has never acted in his capacity as a member of the commission.

VETERAN'S SERVICES TO BE HELD FRIDAY

Funeral services for Dr. M. D. Talbot, 57, Confederate veteran, who died Wednesday afternoon at a private hospital, will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon from the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes, the Rev. C. W. Johnson, officiating. Interment will be at Tucker Ga.

Dr. Talbot was the son of General Matthew Talbot, for whom Talbot county was named. He practiced medicine in Macon, Ga., for more than 20 years and later removed to Atlanta, where he remained until his death. He was a member of the Baptist church. Members of the W. H. T. Walker camp, United Confederate Veterans, will act as pallbearers. Awtry & Lowndes in charge.

END DISCUSSIONS OVER UNIFICATION

Further systematic discussion of the matter in either the club or secular press in regard to unification will be discontinued, according to an announcement Wednesday by Dr. Elam F. Dempsey, chairman of publicity for the friends of unification of the North Georgia conference.

"It has been the position of friends of unification that, with the ballot cast by the annual conference, the unification controversy was concluded. By action of the general conference in called session in July, 1924 this question was passed down to the annual conference for final action. Since the action of the various conferences is final, so far as the friends of unification are concerned, the controversy is concluded," Dr. Dempsey added.

Shall Only the BIG Bootleggers Be Jailed?

NO DEVELOPMENT IN THE WHOLE COURSE of the historic struggle of the last five years over the Eighteenth Amendment has been more significant, in the opinion of the Baltimore Sun, than the controversy between Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, and United States District Attorney Emory R. Buckner, of New York. Apparently, concludes the Newark News, Mr. Wheeler is preparing to fight harder than ever during the session of Congress just ahead "to prevent modification of the Volstead Act, and has taken this means of declaring war."

What seems to have started Mr. Wheeler off on his crusade against Mr. Buckner—a crusade which took the dry leader to the White House—is the District Attorney's recent announcement that the business of the Government in the present emergency is to dry up the source of liquor supply, and not waste time and money in trying to run down petty bootleggers, waiters in cafes, and side-door saloon-keepers. The District Attorney, according to the Providence News, "also admits that he can not regard a man who carries a flask on his hip as being as hardened a criminal as burglar or a forger. And that, of course, in the eyes of Mr. Wheeler, is a high crime and misdemeanor."

This gives but a hint of the interesting character of this article in The Literary Digest, Dec. 5th issue.

Desperate Plight of European Protestantism

PROTESTANTISM IN CONTINENTAL EUROPE is reported in a desperate battle for its life, with the outlook so ominous as to raise the question whether it is not on the point of death.

Some of the causes of Protestantism's desperate condition are inherent in its divisions; others have been induced by the war. The net result, we are told, is almost complete loss of prestige, lack of financial and moral support, depletion in clergy and congregations, loss of its press and the lack of new recruits to take up the work interrupted by death, starvation and disillusionment. The grim facts are presented by the Rev. Dr. George Stewart, associate pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, in New York City. As a member of a special survey committee of the Near East Relief and as a student of religious conditions, he has traveled extensively in Europe and Asiatic Russia. He is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of England. In fourteen countries in Europe, writes Dr. Stewart, Protestantism "lives in an atmosphere of defeat, of hatred, of greed and fear—the four outstanding characteristics of the post-war turmoil in each of the warring countries."

This is a ringing challenge to Protestant America that should awaken it to the need of coming to the rescue of their co-religionists in Europe.

Solons Voice Opposition To Extra Legislative Meet In Questionnaire Answer

Representative Milner
Makes Public Result of Personal Questionnaire
Sent to Solons.

Out of 129 replies from legislators to his letter requesting opinions on the proposed extra session of the legislature, 94 are opposed to such a session. J. Herman Milner, member of the house of representatives from Dodge county, announced Wednesday. Mr. Milner said he sent his letter out early in October and added that in fairness to these members, he should say that it was possible some of them had changed their views in the meantime.

Mr. Milner held a second conference with Governor Clifford Walker

On Tuesday, he said, but neither changed his attitude on the extra session matter. Mr. Milner pointed out that the 94 members opposed to the extra session, constitute almost half the membership of the house, and that he had heard indirectly from almost a score of others who were against the session. He also said that, while he did not think the percentage of opposition would run high among those who did not answer his letter, he believes one-half of these would not favor the session. State Senator William Sapp, of Dalton, also opposes the extra session, in copies of his letter to the governor, made public Wednesday. Senator Sapp says that the public is entitled to the rest from legislative activity which it expected when it voted for biennial sessions.

Those Opposed.

Among members of the house of representatives who wrote him stating that they opposed the extra session,

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flu

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspirin, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories, tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as ten times as quick and effective as whiskey, cough and croup, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk half a dollar for a bottle of Aspirin and tell him to serve you two teaspoonfuls. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you to expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspirin is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's, choking up at night—(adv.)

Representative V. V. Warren, of Washington county, is in favor of an extra session of the legislature if for no other reason than because, as he said Wednesday, we must do something for the Confederate pensioners.

Representative Warren was a visitor at the state capital Wednesday. He said he had not answered Governor Clifford Walker's letter seeking views on the extra session proposal, because he had been away from his office for weeks performing his official duty as member of the house committee on penitentiaries.

"I voted for the Confederate scrip bill last session," said Mr. Warren, "though I believe that scrip issued under that bill would be worthless."

Know if I was a banker I wouldn't give a penny on the dollar for it, as the bill was passed.

Would Vote Aye Again.

"All the same, I would vote for the same bill again if I couldn't do anything better, because it has at least focussed attention on the necessity of paying these overdue pensions at once. And I'm for an extra session under any circumstances for no other reason than to provide for the old pensioners."

"CALL ME HENRY," PROMINENT MASON, CLAIMED BY DEATH

Washington, December 2.—The old nickname—"Call Me Henry"—the one which Henry Lansburgh, a prominent merchant, was known to thousands of Masons throughout the United States, will identify the affable Shriner's grave, now that he is dead. In his will, filed for probate Wednesday, Lansburgh left orders that "Call Me Henry" and the States of his birth and death be carved on the doors of the mausoleum in which his body will rest.

Lansburgh, who was potentate of Alpha temple and vice president of the department of Lansburgh Brothers, left numerous bequests to various charities. Strangely enough, the well-known philanthropist, a bachelor, was alone when he died.

STEAMERS DELAY SAILING IN FACE OF SEVERE GALE

Newport News, Va., December 2.—(AP)—Fearsful to venture forth in the teeth of a 58-mile northeast gale, which lashed the waters of the harbor into fury, playing havoc with small boats and piers along the water front, steamers loaded or bundled here and ready to sail from port tonight, delayed their departure until the weather shall have moderated. It was announced at the office of the Virginia Pilots' association.

Steamers that were inward bound, however, were glad to make port and get away from the tremendous seas that were rolling out of the boom.

OF MINERS' STRIKE

Philadelphia, December 2.—The Rev. J. J. Curran, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, in Wilkes-Barre, who persuaded Theodore Roosevelt to end an anthracite strike two decades ago, has actively resumed his role.

Father Curran was in Philadelphia Tuesday, following the decision of Governor Pinchot's proposal for a common meeting ground for the opposing factions. He slipped into town, unheralded, dodged the formalities of an official conference and interviewed Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the anthracite operators' conference, and Philip Murray, international vice president of the mine workers.

Father Curran declined today upon his departure for his parish, whether he had obtained a basis for optimism.

BETTER LEATHER AIDS HARVESTING

Washington, December 2.—(AP)—Favorable weather for picking and ginning cotton continued in the western and northwestern portions of the cotton belt during the past week with mostly ideal conditions for field work prevailing in Texas and Oklahoma.

The weather bureau in its weekly summary of crop and weather conditions in southern states, made public today, added that in Texas picking has been nearly completed, except in the northwest, while the crop is nearly out in most sections of Oklahoma.

There is much unpicker cotton ready to be picked in the state, but that which is still out is generally badly stained and of a low grade; cotton is mostly picked elsewhere in the state. There is still considerable to pick in the Tennessee and Kentucky, some remains in the fields in North Carolina. There was some damage by rain in the Imperial Valley of California.

Fall truck generally did well in Gulf districts, though there was some frost injury in southern Alabama at the close of last week. The cool weather was favorable for ripening cane in the southeast, and the sugar content of this crop improved in Louisiana, by reason of the more favorable weather, but was still low. Hardly vegetables show improvement in the South Atlantic states and conditions were favorable for stripping tobacco in the middle Atlantic area and Ohio valley.

Conditions by States.

Maryland: Cool week and wet weather first half interfered with outdoor operations. Bulk of corn husked. Potatoes yet to dig in extreme west. Tobacco stripping continues. Some plowing done. Butcher and stock-raising in progress. Early snows grain in good condition, but growing slowly. Late snows up. Pasture poor.

Virginia: Week comparatively dry and cool. Winter grains coming well. Pasture continued fair to good. Favorable for marketing tobacco and for the sugar work of the season.

North Carolina: Week cold; rainfall light. Favorable for farming activities. Good progress housing crops, but still some cotton and corn in the fields. Winter grain and hardy truck doing fairly well. Seedling lettuce completed in southeast.

South Carolina: Winter cereals in good condition and late planting coming up to good stand. Winter wheat in fair condition. Hardly vegetables in interior improved and spinach, turnips and cabbage of coast doing well, but winter wheat needed. Straws continue low.

Georgia: Light rains, with moderately cool weather most of week and some frost. Wheat, oats and rye well advanced and affording good grazing. Planting cereals nearing completion. Cool weather favorable for shipping and marketing of crops.

Florida: Frost damaged truck in west last week and beat and other tender plants suffered for part of current week in north and central divisions. Low temperatures benefited citrus fruits. Oats and corn practically all gathered; an insignificant amount of cotton unginned. Some oats progressed slowly; early-sown being well. Digging sweet potatoes progressing; some groundnuts, grain and peas are being harvested. Planting winter cabbage in coast region progressing well. Frost at close of previous week killed or injured tender vegetation in coast region. Remaining pastures mostly poor. Sugar cane making considerable progress. Shipments of autumn oranges well advanced for season.

Mississippi: Generally fair, except light precipitation in south Friday, and light to moderate in north Sunday. Reasonable farm work made good progress. Some stock raising in fields in line with considerably damaged. Pastures checked by cold in north, but good progress in south. Some cattle and hogs wintered to test of deterioration; sugar content somewhat improved, but still low. Rice threshing continued. Considerable fall plowing and road work done. Oats and truck doing well. Wheat, corn and generally well with excessive sunshine; ideal for harvesting, seedling and plowing. Progress and condition of pastures, winter wheat and oats mostly very good; of truck good. Citrus and truck shipments large. Early-sown picking cotton rapid and about completed, except in northwestern corner.

Oklahoma: Mild and pleasant; light scattered rain one day. Very good progress picking and ginning cotton, which is nearly completed most sections, practically all low grade. Harvesting corn and grain sorghums about finished. Wheat good to excellent but some yet to be planted. Native pasture fair; wheat and oats doing well.

Arkansas: Moderate temperature and light precipitation one to two rainy days. Fairly good progress in picking cotton and gathering fall crops; much unpicker cotton in lowlands, but most of it picked elsewhere; cotton that opened late excellent, but mixed with dirty, stained fiber, making grade very poor; corn nearly all gathered. Favorable weather for plowing crops.

Tennessee: Temperature nearly normal and rain only on one or two days gave fairly good weather. Wheat, oats, rye and barley fair to very good. Clover poor to fair. Corn and generally well with stock about normal. Considerable cotton yet unpicker.

Kentucky: Corn gathering continued until stopped by rain middle of week; fields matured so well. Wheat, oats, rye and barley fair to very good; rye and grass pasture fair, but moderate feeded acreage; stock in good condition. Favorable for tobacco stripping.

WARNING OF FRAUD ISSUED IN TRADING IN GERMAN MARKS

New York, December 2.—(AP)—Warning against a new form of fraud in connection with trading in German marks was issued today by the commerce and marine commission of the American Bankers' association. The warning was particularly against transactions based on a misrepresentation of the application of the German revaluation law to holdings of paper mark bonds, especially post-war bonds.

Certain firms in all parts of the country were said to be promoting sales of German securities by representing that both pre-war and post-war mark bonds can be revalued on the basis of 15 per cent or more of their face value. The actual computation must be based on an infinitesimal fraction of this amount, the association warned.

MOSES OPPOSES
AMERICAN ENTRY INTO WORLD COURT

Washington, December 2.—(AP)—Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, who was one of the leaders in the fight against the League of Nations, declared today that he regarded the world court issue as a renewal of the league controversy.

He asserted that he was opposed to American adherence to the tribunals as now constituted, but would not offer "captious objections" to a world court proposal if it was entirely divorced from the League of Nations. He thought, however, that if the court was separated from the league the present supporters of American adherence would be against it.

'DOUG' AND 'MARY'
ASK PASSPORTS
FOR WORLD TOUR

Los Angeles, December 2.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks and his wife, Mary Pickford, both of the films, today applied at the federal offices here for passports to Great Britain, France, Italy, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany, Japan and China. They said they would sail from New York January 16, or February 2. Fairbanks gave his age as 42, while his wife admitted 32.

Leaders of G.O.P. In Florida Plan Reorganization

West Palm Beach, Fla., December 2.—(AP)—Reorganization of the republican party in Florida was undertaken here today at a conference of republican leaders of the state, which also was attended by Representative Wood, of Indiana, chairman of the national republican congressional committee.

In his address to the gathering, Mr. Wood declared the Harding-Coolidge administration "has swept chaos away and transformed the United States from a land of doubt, confusion and hard times into a land of confidence, stability and prosperity."

The people of the United States, Mr. Wood asserted, are the most prosperous of any people upon the earth. "In the last seven years," he said, "our corporate industries and public utilities have increased the number of their stockholders 3,500,000. More than 500,000 of these are employees of the various industries. Our savings banks in the same period have increased the number of their depositors 28,000,000 with aggregate deposits of over $18,000,000,000.

There are 20,000,000 automobiles and automobile trucks in the United States. Of these we own more than 18,000,000. We have an automobile for every six of our inhabitants.

The one policy to which more credit is due for our great accomplishment under this republican administration, is the protective tariff. Our country always is prosperous when we are living under a just and equitable protective tariff law. It has been more prosperous, however, under the present protective tariff law than under any of its predecessors.

"Our imports for 1922, under the Underwood tariff, were $2,608,000,000. Our imports for 1921, under the Fordney-McCumber law, were $3,900,000,000. Our exports for 1922 were $5,700,000,000. Our exports for 1921 were $4,588,000,000.

BUREAU OF MINES STUDIES PROBLEM OF OIL MAKING

Washington, December 2.—(AP)—Why lubricating oil can be developed more cheaply from one type of petroleum than it can from others is a problem upon which the bureau of mines has now undertaken to find the solution.

The importance of the subject was indicated by the fact that the consumption of petroleum lubricants in the United States is running above a billion gallons a year. The bureau has concluded that good lubricant can be made from any petroleum, but differences in cost of production are great.

RABBIT TURNS TABLES AND SHOOT'S HUNTER

Mulhouse, Alsace-Lorraine, France, December 2.—(AP)—A rabbit turned the tables on a hunter and wounded him with his own gun in Neufbrisch forest today.

A farmer named DeMouche, while inspecting some traps, laid down his shotgun in order to take a captured rabbit out of a snare, when another rabbit dashed out of a thicket and sprung the shotgun's trigger. The hunter received the full charge in his back, but was able to crawl home. A physician sent him to a hospital.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH'S YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, a creamed creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for holding up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion, Company, Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

STATE SENATOR GETS PRISON TERM

Atlanta, Ga., December 2.—(Special.)—State Senator J. D. Clifton, of Lee county, tried here today in supreme court on a charge of embezzling the sum of $4,810.25 from a world war veteran, John J. Curry, was found guilty late today and sentenced to serve from three to five years in the penitentiary.

The case was tried here on a charge of venue from Lee superior court, and much interest centers in the case because of the prominence of the defendant and the fact that he is accused of having embezzled a large sum from a shell-shocked and disabled veteran of the world war, who is now a patient in St. Elizabeth's army hospital at Washington, D. C.

The funds, it was alleged by the state, were received by the defendant as guardian of Curry, who receives regular compensation from the government through the United States Veterans' bureau.

Evidence adduced during the trial showed that Clifton had received varying sums from the government as guardian of Curry and that he had been required by the ordinary of Lee county to furnish additional security upon his bond.

According to attorneys for the defense, prevailing flood conditions about the defendant's home at Leesburg at the time of the demand, prevented conditions which made it physically impossible for the accused to get about and secure additional bondsmen within the time allowed in the order of the ordinary and an order was passed by that court removing Clifton as Curry's guardian and naming in his stead, R. R. Green, present clerk of superior court at Leesburg, who later made formal demand upon Clifton for the sum alleged to have been held by him as the guardian of Curry.

Clifton, it is alleged, failed to surrender the amount demanded by the new guardian and this resulted in the finding of an indictment in Lee superior court, the case being later transferred to Sumter superior court for trial.

A civil case in which it is sought to recover $4,810.25, alleged to have been embezzled by Senator Clifton from Curry has been filed and is now pending in Lee superior court.

Senator Clifton represents the Tenth district, which is composed of the counties of Lee, Dougherty and Worth.

Attorneys gave notice today that an appeal would be filed.

COPELAND SHOT OFFICER PALS SAY

part in the Langford killing, and was released under bond pending the outcome of his appeal for a new trial.

Grilled by Officers.

Under severe grilling, Gilbert told officers that Copeland asked him to find him (Copeland) and Thrallkill a room for the night. He intended taking them to a place on Spring street and then notify officers where to find them so as to claim a part of the reward for their arrest, he said.

When Gilbert joined Copeland and the other men, the officers came up and placed them under arrest, Gilbert said. He declared he knew Copeland and Thrallkill were armed, and "wanted to get out of the way before trouble arose," but failed to do so. The shooting commenced, he said, and he straightaway fled, registering at a downtown hotel under the name of J. C. Rogers, and staying there until late Wednesday morning, when he bought a copy of the Constitution and read of the effects of the shots. He then called detectives and surrendered to Detectives E. D. Meeks and E. W. Ginn, he said.

Both men in their statements denied doing the shooting but admitted that they were in the group of men placed under arrest by the two officers just prior to the affair, according to police.

In addition to Thrallkill and Johnson, two women, Mrs. A. Gilbert, of 140 Luckie street, before whose residence the shooting occurred, and Mrs. Lucy Johnson, of Hartwell, and three men—A. S. Ward, of 236 Washington street; Rogers, of 140 Luckie street; and J. L. Simmons, of 220 Highland avenue, are being held at police headquarters. Three of them are believed to have been Copeland's companions in his automobile flight from the Madison county chancery.

Police are conducting an intensive search for Copeland and Fred Smith, of Madison county, who is said to have been an occupant of the automobile.

While Patrolman Head is suffering from bullet wounds in the cheek, left shoulder and the lower abdomen, hospital attendants late Wednesday afternoon held Copeland's head, stating that his condition was slightly improved.

Arrest Auto Party.

The shooting occurred about 1 o'clock Wednesday morning. Patrolman Head and Isaac W. Belcher were riding along Luckie street when they saw an automobile containing five men parked in front of 140 Luckie street, according to their report to Captain Grover C. Fain. The officers stopped to investigate.

Patrolman Head alighted from the police car ahead of Belcher and immediately recognized Copeland as an escaped convict. The two officers ordered the occupants of the car to halt. The men in the car replied: "That's all right, officer, we'll come along quietly." The officers, however, took no chances and searched them for weapons. Belcher was told to call the patrol wagon by Head.

In the absence of Belcher, Head made three of the men sit on the back seat of their own car. Suddenly one of the men grasped a gun which had been concealed and opened fire on Head, according to the report. When the shooting occurred, the others in the car jumped out and ran. Belcher fired at the car and hit Officer Head, but he followed the men down the street and shot twice, he said.

Head was carried to Grady hospital following the shooting, which Belcher reported to headquarters.

Rogers Gilbert, one of those arrested in connection with the shooting, was apprehended early Wednesday afternoon. He was recently convicted in Fulton superior court on a charge of voluntary manslaughter in connection with the slaying of Leonard Langford, who lived at 114-1/2 Garnett street. He was given a sentence of from three to five years, but upon motion for new trial, was released under a $2,500 bond.

Copeland, who, Thrallkill and Johnson state fired the fatal shots, served a term in the Atlanta federal penitentiary with Chapman and Anderson, being convicted of raising a $1 bill to $10.

Police late Wednesday said they were in possession of a clue to the whereabouts of Copeland. He was

RUDYARD KIPLING ILL OF PNEUMONIA

London, December 2.—(AP)—Rudyard Kipling has been stricken with double pneumonia at the little Sussex village of Burwash. Late tonight, London was filled with alarmist reports. One was that the disease had developed rapidly and that the condition of the noted author had become worse.

Lord Dawson, the king's physician, was called in consultation with the regular physician, and this evening he informed the Associated Press upon his return to London that Kipling was suffering from double pneumonia and his condition was "anxious, but not dangerous."

Close friends of Kipling received a telegram at 8 o'clock tonight from Burwash, with Kipling's name attached, saying that the doctors were satisfied with his condition, but that the disease must run its course.

The cause of Kipling's illness is not exactly known. One report has been that he spent some time on the grounds of his house Sunday without his coat, notwithstanding the severe weather, and in the evening complained of pains in the chest.

He was taken to a South Pryor street address, where he is said to have been carried after the shooting by a taxi-cab driver. A wound was noticed on Copeland's head by the driver of the cab, and it is believed that the wound was inflicted by the pistol of Officer Head. The trigger of one of the officers' two guns, was found to be broken following the shooting, and Head stated that he hit one of the occupants of the car with his gun.

Thrallkill was arrested shortly after the occurrence on Peachtree street by Patrolman S. C. Tuck. After being questioned by police, he is said to have admitted being in the automobile and to have escaped from the convict camp. He also is said to have told officers that he had a pistol secreted in a pocket of the automobile and that Copeland also had a pistol hidden in another pocket.

Shows Hidden Weapon.

He was taken to the scene of the shooting and led officers to the spot where he had hidden his weapon. The pistol was found and had not been fired, it was said. Soon after the arrest of Thrallkill Captain Grover C. Fain arrested Mrs. Gilbert, Mrs. Lucy Johnson, and William Johnson. Johnson admitted he drove Thrallkill and Copeland from Madison county to Atlanta and that he hit one of the occupants of the car with his gun, according to police.

During the course of the investigation, Ward and Simmons were arrested near the scene of the shooting. Both denied all knowledge of the shooting. They told police, it was reported, that they had been held up but not robbed, and had gone back to the place where the hold-up occurred to pick up something that they had dropped.

Thrallkill was serving a sentence of from three to five years in Madison county convict camp after having been convicted in Fulton superior court last summer of larceny of an automobile. Head, a brother of Sergeant Oral Head, of the county police, has been on the city police force since February 25, 1924. He lives at 875 Grant street.

Members of the city fire department were jubilant over the big vote the measure received at the polls. They conducted a campaign largely of personal appeal to their neighbors and friends to get the city to pay them more money and their campaign resulted in a big majority for the increase Wednesday.

In several voting boxes the balloting was ten to one in favor of the increase. In ward five, precinct B, the vote was 402 for and only 52 against. In ward five precinct G, the vote was 104 for and only 5 against. In ward five, precinct A, the vote was 229 for and 29 against. In ward 11, precinct A, the vote was 238 to 21 in favor of the raise.

The only precincts in the city which opposed the measure were precinct C, eighth ward, which polled 45 votes for the raise and 54 against it; precinct B in the ninth ward, which voted 158 for and 187 against, and precinct A, the eighth ward, which polled 255 votes for and 468 against the ordinance.

The ordinance submitted by the firemen under the initiative clause of the city charter provides that firemen shall work 12 hours a day except in emergencies. It provides that, except in emergencies, the crew handling each apparatus must be under the command of an officer of the rank of not less than lieutenant.

Firemen Thank Voters.

E. A. Davidson, chairman of the firemen's referendum committee, Wednesday night thanked Atlanta voters for the overwhelming majority accorded the pay increase proposal.

"Atlantans who voted favorably to our cause," said Davidson, "will never regret their action, as Atlanta firemen will prove by the test that the people's confidence was not misplaced.

"We have tried in the past to serve faithfully, and Atlanta has never returned a deaf ear to us—or ours.

"This campaign was conducted on a lofty plane in so far as we were concerned, and naturally we are happy to know that we have been granted the right to live comfortably.

"We feel that toward none who opposed us in our efforts. They were within their rights as citizens of our great democracy, and we will continue in the future, as in the past, to serve all our citizens, regardless of class, race or creed."

Ratio of Increases.

It provides that the salaries for the firemen as are paid mail carriers in the Atlanta postoffice. This scale, as applied, provides for first year men, $1,750 a year; for second-year men, $1,800 a year; for third-year men, $1,850 a year; and after three years' service $1,900 a year. Additions to the minimum is provided as follows: Assistant master mechanic, signal operators, drivers and tillermen, 6 per cent; lieutenants and fire inspectors, 12 per cent; captains and signal firemen, 13 per cent; superintendent of fire alarm system and master mechanics, 25 per cent; assistant chiefs, 28 per cent; secretary of the fire department, 46 per cent, and first assistant chief, 46 per cent.

Under estimates made at the city hall, the total increase will amount to approximately $117,000 a year.

All candidates for places as councilmen, aldermen and members of the board of education were reelected without opposition. They were nominated in the city primary held in September.

Firemen Work Hard.

Practically all city firemen who were not on active duty Wednesday went in squads to the polling places to urge votes in favor of the referendum.

Councilman Cecil G. Allen, who has persistently fought the measure referring the firemen's pay increases to vote of the people, refused Wednesday his purpose to introduce ordinances in city council next Monday to increase salaries of all other city employees in event the firemen's petition was approved.

The referendum on the firemen's petition was due to the firemen circulating a petition, invoking for the first time in the city's history the initiative clause of the city charter. This petition bore signatures of 10,000 voters and all who signed were Twelfth ward—For 245; against 80.

The firemen worked hard in all parts of the city and won a complete victory over those opposed to the increase, only three precincts voting against the measure.

Frank Weldon, secretary of the Taxpayers' league, which was one of the foremost organizations opposing the increase in salaries for the city firemen, after the result had been determined that as far as he knew his organization would not seek an injunction restraining the city from paying the increase until the legality of the Wednesday election is tested in the courts.

Councilman T. C. Morris, of the fifth ward, stated Wednesday night after returns had been tabulated that as "a friend of the firemen" he was glad that the election was carried, and that he accepted the polling as the final and supreme verdict of the citizens of Atlanta.

"In the American republic, the people are the masters," he declared. "If they wish to raise the pay of a man or group of men the authority rests solely in them. Opposition to the raise should accede to the rule of the large majority of voters, who expressed their views in ballots polled Wednesday."

What Are You Doing For Your Puny Child?

For weak, frail, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets, and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, cod liver oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing helps like it.

But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated and easy to take. One boy gained 11-1/2 pounds in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for 60 cents at Jacobs' Pharmaceutical Co., and all druggists—but be sure and ask for McCoy's—the original and genuine.

Give them to the sickly, frail child for 30 days and if they don't help—wonderfully, "our druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.—(adv.)"

DRAMATIC PLEA SAVES BRIAND'S GOVERNMENT

rose when Briand had done and warned the chamber not to trifle with a dangerous situation.

"If the inflation project is not voted tonight," he said, "the gravest consequences can follow. It is my duty to tell you."

"Having examined the treasury situation, we decided that the sum of 6,000,000,000 francs was indispensable to insure our complete independence. There are 2,400,000,000 francs due December 8. Before the end of the year there will be 2,000,000,000 francs more to pay for expenditures of state."

"This inflation is assured by taxes, but this project is only preliminary to a much broader proposition.

"If it is not voted, I repeat, the situation would be most grave, and in the presence of a number of prominent business men."

Briand personally received an ovation when he entered the chamber before the reading of the ministerial declaration, but both houses heard the document coldly.

On every hand there is the unsettling impression that Briand will not remain long in power and the repugnance with which Frenchmen view another possibility of a cabinet crisis.

THE SHOALS REPORTS.

The five members of the president's special Muscle Shoals commission, failing to compose their differences as to recommendations for the conduct of that great property, split three to two, and in that ratio submitted majority and minority reports.

The summaries of these reports, as made public by the president, show good and bad features in both—so much so, indeed, that congress should be easily able to eliminate the bad features, and the conflicts, and combine the two, thus fixing definitely upon a policy that will serve all the good purposes in mind.

To illustrate, the majority report, signed by Chairman McKenzie, former Senator Dial and R. F. Fowler, favor government operation if a satisfactory private lease cannot be obtained within 90 days after congress authorizes the lease, and also dedicates the property to national defense by providing for the production of nitrates for ammunition in time of war and for fertilizer in time of peace. If there is any surplus power after these operations the majority recommends its sale for distribution.

The minority recommendations signed by Harry A. Curtis and William McClellan classify Muscle Shoals as essentially a power proposition. It recommends the setting aside of a certain amount of power for fertilizer manufacture and the distribution over established lines of all remaining power. It favors the creation of a Muscle Shoals board, which would be authorized to make separate power and fertilizer leases.

Both reports recommend an annual rental of 4 per cent of the present value of the property, which the majority estimates at $42,000,000. This estimate, however, seems entirely too low when the costs of the property to date, even taking into account the emergency excesses during the war, are considered.

The point, however, is—there is nothing irreconcilable in the two reports. If the government can lease the property, or sell it with proper defense and fertilizer reservations then it must of necessity operate it. That is an alternative that it is hoped may be escaped. Therefore, the 90-day lean provision should be extended.

Again, if the government may commandeer any plant in an emergency, it can assuredly reserve the use of Muscle Shoals' nitrate facilities for use as a defense unit in time of war or threatened war. It is unnecessary to let such a potential water power remain even partially idle and deteriorating, however, waiting for a war that the best thought of the world is trying to make impossible among civilized peoples.

Both reports provide for the manufacture of commercial nitrates for fertilizer purposes, and both reports provide for the distribution of surplus power for industry. The harmonizing of the two, therefore, is entirely practicable, and apparently not difficult.

And this should be done as quickly as possible. The country's mind pretty well fixed upon the proper course—and that is private operation under government restrictions, with reservations for its use in an emergency as a government nitrate plant, and the full use of its power first for fertilizers to be sold at cost plus a low but reasonable profit to the farmers, and then the sale of the power under the water power act which controls all hydro-electric distributors. The government is entitled to a reasonable interest on its investment, but

THE ANTHRACITE WAR.

The refusal of the operators—the owners of the anthracite coal mines—to accept the Pinchot peace formula which has been accepted by the leaders of the miners, who are on strike, is disappointing to the entire country—particularly in view of the fact that the miners have acceded practically to every contention made by the operators when the issues, preceding the strike, were in controversy.

The proposals made by the governor of Pennsylvania merely outlined "a basis for settlement," the main points being provisions for speedy resumption of mining, the nationwide need for which is pressing, and for future peace in the anthracite fields.

Closely these proposals—or stipulations—provide that the men return to work at the old scale of wages, pending the fixing of a new scale for a five-year period at not less than the existing rates; that there shall be no raise in coal prices to consumers above those fixed for 1925 before the strike was called; the voluntary assignment of not more than $14 of his yearly wages to the union in place of the check-off demanded by the scale committee; that the miners admit "full recognition of the union shall not be granted;" that a board of investigation and award, composed of two representatives of operators, two of miners and three to be chosen by the joint vote of the original four, shall decide within six months whether the miners are entitled to a wage increase.

There is not a provision in the program that has not been tentatively accepted by the operators, and their failure to accept it will result in a concentration of public sympathy behind the miners to such an extent that the owner-policy in the future react as one of the most economic folly.

It must be remembered that in accepting these stipulations the miners have agreed to return to work without any assurance of wage increases, receding at the same time from their stand that they would not accept arbitration. Accordingly they have waived their former demands for a check-off. To all of this must be added the wisdom of an initial move to break a deadlock which has already cost the hard coal industry more than $100,000,000, estimated.

It is significant, also, that the miners, in accepting the Pinchot formula, voluntarily added the thought that the interests of peace in the anthracite industry require consideration by both sides in a spirit of compromise and mutual concession.

The burden is now squarely upon the shoulders of the operators. They are organized. They have in a measure won by the last move of the operators. It is no time for punitive vengeance because they have the power and the wealth. The interests of the public must be considered, and the public is not going to sympathize with the operators in the position they now assume. It is hoped the war may end in the spirit the miners have now shown.

JERSEY'S CONGRESSMAN.

When congress convenes Monday, for the first time in its history a woman will be regularly seated on the right of the speaker's chair—on the democratic side. She is Mrs. Mary T. Norton, of New Jersey, representative from the 12th district, and regularly elected on her own merits by a majority of 15,000 against three stout male opponents. Her entry to congress is distinctive not only in that she is the first democratic woman elected to that body, but the first woman elected from the eastern states. Heretofore, the women members have been from the west, and with the two exceptions of Miss Rankin, of Montana, and Miss Robertson, of Oklahoma, both republicans, the women members have been elected for part terms to fill the vacancies of dead husbands, or a dead father, as in the case of the election of the daughter of Congressman (former United States senator) Mason, of Illinois.

Miss Rankin, the first woman to enter congress, is now a resident of Georgia, and is conducting a farm and pecan orchard near Athens. Miss Robertson, who returned to Oklahoma town when her district swung back to the democrats in 1922, also is connected with Georgia history through her ancestors.

The new congresswoman from New Jersey will be very well remembered by southerners who attended the democratic national convention in New York in 1924. She spoke during the nominations and impressed every one with her compelling personality and forceful delivery.

She has been vice chairman of the state democratic committee for four years, and has been a virile, militant party leader without sacrificing any of the domesticity that has made the home of Robert Norton, a business man, a center of social and cultural thought in Jersey City for many years.

Shine out, sweet day,
And make the meadows bright
Light the lonely valleys
Crown the hills with light
Sing the song of Morning
That never
Shine out, sweet day!

To bless the coming year,
No shadow of Life's sorrow,
No Memory of tears,
Shine out, and bring the blessing
Of love, and answered prayers!

In reply to a critic who had handled a poem of his rather roughly, the poet of the Whiteside Court said:

"We may not be much on this sort of thing, but we lead on sports in this settlement. We can clear ten yards in jumping match, without running to get up speed and springiness."

Christmas bells still go in poetry, but they're really in the back number class, for the honk of the auto long ago put bells, hands and tin horns out of business, as well as the proverbial "goose" that is supposed to honk high because everything is "lovely."

Youthtime is joytime

And never comes to stay—

II. Joy is a coming.

Sunny-bright and gay.

At the world is waiting

But he will make it May!

Youthtime is love-time—

A rainbow's fleeting ray—

"Holiday! Holiday!"

It's even easier to "tell your troubles to the winds," for the winds may have a couple of church steeples to blow down, and so wouldn't have more time or patience to listen to you.

But here's where he ain't stayin'.

Because we make him shake a foot

We know him, his trouble's from down.

An' we just dance him out o' town!

Where he can sit and sigh.

And then the room with shades of gloom

Beneath a hopeless sky:

And then he shakes the shingles down

An' dance the old man out o' town!

GEORGIA

Day by Day

—BY—

RALPH T. JONES

Every Georgian is proud of what Georgia has. Every Georgian is proud of what Georgia is doing. The Georgia we know is doing things that are greater, probably, than the average man or woman realizes. The march toward real wealth and prosperity has begun, and it is an enlargement to read what the counties and cities are doing to feel the surge of pride in this commonwealth and its people.

Georgians and visitors alike, however, have a habit of pointing out the things needed, first. Afterwards they say there are splendid resources here, our people are fine and we have done wonderful things in the past decade or so.

First, though, they have told us what we should do, and it must be admitted that it is not hard to find a goal toward which to work. Always we will be things to do. When the day comes we can find nothing worthy of improvement, that day the state will start to regress.

Every day brings news of the club of Atlanta, a splendid body of thoughtful, constructive men, went on record as declaring the University of Georgia and its rehabilitation the most pressing need of all. When you examine affairs and conditions at the university, when you consider that institution with others in surrounding states, you agree with them.

On Wednesday Charles Schabel, district newspaper correspondent from the north, representative of a string of 20 papers in New York and Pennsylvania, arrived in Atlanta. He is traveling by automobile, and after coming into Atlanta from Asheville by way of Hartwell, Tucker, Athens, Commerce, Jeffersonville, Windsor, etc., he is convinced that the most pressing need in this state is good roads.

If you had traveled over his route, and if you had given thought to it, that good roads may mean to a state or community, you would agree with him.

And so it goes. Everyone sees the need immediately before him. All needs are so great that it seems impossible any other can come first.

And yet, to those of us who know, nothing is more certain than that Georgia is meeting the needs.

Every day brings news of another county putting under way plans for construction of modern paved road systems within its borders. Every edition of the newspapers tells of plans moving toward realization of the completion of some great inter-county highway, linking important points and providing new tourist roads through the state.

The day of good roads is coming in Georgia. It is coming faster and faster with every week and it will not be so long before it will be impossible for visitors to suffer so impossible as did Mr. Schabel on his tour through the northern part of the state.

Just how Georgia will finally solve her pressing highway problem, we don't know yet. One thing, however, we do know. That is, Georgians will solve the problem, eventually.

As for the needs of the university, those too, will be met, in due time. For the sentiment which demands action on this question is daily rolling across the state in ever-increasing

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

New York, December 2.—A painter who is gaining some distinction hereabouts was married on the strength of his success not long ago. The man told me that he had married the wife because she was the only young woman of the crowd who frequented his atelier, who dared to tell him frankly that he could not paint. "But," he added, "she admits now that I am making a little progress."

The case is not isolated. I recall a story of an English clergyman who married the least handsome girl among his parishioners. "I did it," he said, "because she is the only girl who does not pull a face when she loses at tennis."

And a famous New York musician swears, to which his wife laughingly agrees, that they were married because she had not the slightest feeling for music, while a well-known Columbia professor became enamored of one of his students because he thought her the most delightful of his disciples. The girl had listened to his lectures for a week and at the close of that period knew less about the subject he had been teaching than when he started.

While we are on the subject of marriage there is the case of the wealthy New York bachelor, who successfully evaded all the debutantes and their aspiring mammas for quite a time. He had a yacht on which he toured the world. Sometimes he was away for years. In the dining saloon of this yacht he ate his meals in silence and alone. No company was ever admitted. And on the chair across the table from his customary seat he had attached a small brass plate with the word "Liberty" engraved on it.

Always he looked at that emblem and he used to compliment himself on his freedom from marital ties. Slowly he began to regard that little plaque with a sort of reverend superstition. He came to believe that the moment he would not be able to decipher the word from where he usually sat at meals his jig would be up.

After one particularly long absence abroad he dropped into Long Island harbor unexpectedly. He went ashore to call up some friends. The captain of the ship taking advantage of the master's absence invited some acquaintances to inspect the boat. They were just looking over the dining room and a beautiful blonde girl had by chance dropped in on the chair marked "Liberty." At that moment the master returned. He was gracious enough about it. But no sooner had the girl gone across the gangplank than he rushed back to the dining room, flopped in his own chair and stared at the chair across. He could not read the word. They were married a month later.

"The new Turkish cafe on Fifty-Ninth street, where after-theater crowds flock to see a dancing sextet of big-eyed brunettes, who were originally destined for the harem of some Sultan (at least that is what the press ad says), has also imported a snake charmer. The fellow wears a turban of green silk, sits hunched in a corner and plays a weary tune on a sort of flute. There is really little charm about the melody, but it may be that it is fascinatingly hypnotizing to the snake. At least the reptile seems to listen to it. Needless to say nobody pays a great deal of attention to the snake charmer, with the six other extremely decollete charmers cavorting under the spotlight about between the tables.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Wales in Nickelodeon.

The Prince of Wales was recently elected master of the Masonic lodge at Oxford. After the election he went to the Cafe Royal to listen and tell stories of his Oxford days, where the Cafe Royal was strictly out of bounds to undergraduates and therefore quite a novelty to the students.

The Prince, who was in residence at Magdalen from 1912 to 1914 said he would have enjoyed attending the party more there if he had not been for some time at least under constant surveillance. A fantastic theory was held officiously that the Prince was being watched by the police to assassinate him with a bomb as reprisals for "executions in India. When the excitement was over, the Prince managed to give the slip to the men responsible for his safety. Oxford was secured for hours, and he was, so the story goes, ultimately found in the three-penny seats of one of the cinemas—seats so cheap that no undergraduate was ever supposed to patronize them.

Popular Demand.

The Corriere Della Sera, one of Italy's greatest papers, published at Milan, is the only paper in the world of which there is no opposition to the fascist regime, for since its suspension a few months ago, the Corriere has scrupulously refrained from comment on any discussion of political questions. But a new charge has been found. Mussolini said that the neutral attitude of the Corriere was due to the influence of opposition. The Manchester Guardian outlines the method of procedure against the Corriere. Mussolini said that the Corriere was "a paper of the world not to make some universal expression of their sympathy with the great Italian people, which has stood so long for all that the press is supposed to stand for."

NEGRO CEMETERY PERMIT REVOKED BY COMMISSIONERS

Fulton county commissioners Wednesday revoked the permit granted Saturday for the establishment of a negro cemetery on Simpson road. All commissioners with the exception of Paul S. Etheridge, voted to rescind the former decision. Etheridge explained that he voted against rescinding because contentions of both sides were not brought out in full.

The question was brought before the board by James L. Key, who represented a delegation of about 50 property owners in the vicinity of the proposed cemetery. The delegation had obtained a permanent injunction in superior court to prevent the establishment of the cemetery, but the Georgia court of appeals reversed the decision and sent it back for determination as to whether the cemetery would be a nuisance. The case now is pending. Mr. Key asked the board to revoke the permit in order that the court might be called upon for a final ruling of all the legal aspects of the case, when it is heard.

PROHIBIT AGENT FINED; IGNORED SUBPOENA

Because he failed to appear as a witness in a recent session of the federal grand jury here, P. L. Souther, prohibition agent with headquarters at Blairsville, Ga., was fined $10 by Judge Samuel Sibley Wednesday. Souther said he was making a raid at the time the grand jury was in session, and said several witnesses before the jury knew as much about the case in question as he did. He said he did not think it was necessary for him to appear.

Hen Rides on Bumper.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Smith, of Salem, Ore., discovered a hen roosting on the bumper of their auto after they had driven home from some friends' house, a distance of several miles. The hen had gone to roost at the regular hour when the auto was standing idle, and slept through the ride home undisturbed.

ADDICT ASKS TERM FOR CURE OF HABIT

After entering a plea of guilty to a charge of violating the federal narcotic law, Frank C. Callahan, of Fulton county, was sentenced to serve one year and one day in the federal penitentiary by Federal Judge Samuel H. Sibley Wednesday. Callahan told the court that he was a "commercial" addict, and that he had been using narcotics for some time.

MADEAN WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN HER HOME

Macon, Ga., December 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Louise Napier Bowen, 43, member of a prominent middle Georgia family, was found dead today at her home, a country road with a bullet wound in her head.

A coroner's jury later returned a verdict that death was "by her own hand."

HEALTH TALKS BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Referring to the great prevalence of nasal infections, Dr. F. W. Briggs, of Duluth, remarks that "nasal infections are indeed common, especially in climates such as we have here in Minnesota."

This sounds at first like the ears like a knock on Minnesota climate, than which, at least, in my judgment, there is certainly not a more beautiful climate in the country. But let Dr. Briggs finish his remark: "During a large part of the year we are housed in."

So, after all, it is just another out-cry against the unwholesome indoor climate, the artificial Sahara, which is pretty much the same everywhere. But Dr. Briggs throws light on a very common and very serious question of health and hygiene when he utters this remarkable remark:

"I am rather firm in my belief that nasal pathology is usually painless and symptomless. Pain and distress symptoms arise only as a result of disfunction under stress."

In other words, many persons have chronic trouble in the nose, such as sinusitis, which gives rise to almost no discomfort until the nasal organ is called upon to function again. Some such stress as the abnormal dryness of overheated indoor air. Then the victim becomes conscious of something.

I believe that every individual who sets up his own personal casualties from encounters with drafts, wet feet, chills, colds, or other exposures, against the scientific fact that such factors cause no respiratory disease, is living testimony to the truth of Dr. Briggs' teaching. In a person with chronic low grade nasal lesions, or say painless infected tonsils, experience discomfort from mechanical circulation of air, and the result is a normal individual, cause no discomfort at all.

Further, I venture to say, and with-out reference to ordinary intelligence, most people are rather dumb about slight functional ailments, that is, most people somehow fail to be conscious of or else learn to ignore slight functional derangements, and these people very cordially blame drafts, wet feet, light clothing and the like for their discomforts—it seems to be a human weakness to prefer a logical alibi when any little thing goes wrong with health. Not one person in a thousand has as yet taken to the good sound and sensible practice of a periodic health examination. People seem to prefer to remain rather dumb about their own minor deficiencies.

"Nasal infections occurring in the infant," Dr. Briggs asserts, "usually have their origin in the chronic rhinitis of the nurse or mother, rather by direct contact, as in kissing, or through the act of sneezing or coughing."

There is a whole sermon there, which ought to be preached over and over again. We might use the term "respiratory infections" instead of just "nasal infections," and the result would be the same. Infections include diphtheria, measles, epidemic meningitis, pneumonia, coryza, simple sore throat, mumps, whooping cough, influenza, and a host of other diseases too often wished on the helpless infant under the disguise of "a cold." Not only nurse or mother, but the doctor, the visitor, or the ignorant visitor—the doctor says I shouldn't call folks ignorant—the visitor who refuses to take a cold, is just an infection.

Republican Senate Leaders, With Exception of Butler, Inclined To Seat Radicals

Senator Edge, Who Helped Oust Elder La Follette, Favors Inviting Young Bob to Caucus.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES, United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, December 2.—(AP)—Republican senators who are seeking to lure the two insurgent youngsters from the northwest, La Follette and Nye, the regular party fold, have run against an obstacle in Senator William M. Butler, of Massachusetts, who happens to be chairman of the republican national committee and a close friend and adviser of President Coolidge.

Butler, who warned republican voters of Wisconsin in vain before the recent primary that young La Follette could not be regarded as a republican, is still of the same opinion, and opposed to the conciliatory move started by other leaders to bring the two young men into the ranks. Those who are promoting the movement are seeking to win him over.

Harmony Forces in Control. Except for Butler's hostility and that of a handful of others, the campaign is moving along smoothly, it was indicated Wednesday. In addition to a general trend toward conciliation, a statement, urging his colleagues to give "Young Bob" a "chance," was issued by Senator Edge, of New Jersey, who led the movement last year to oust the four republican insurgents, assisted by Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania. This statement occasioned some surprise at the capital.

"If Mr. La Follette wants to return to the republican party and function with it, by all means let's give him a chance," Edge said. "I have only opposed the men who publicly repudiated the party and openly left it."

While republicans were discussing the situation among themselves, the princeps subject, young La Follette, spent the day in his office, meeting a number of callers, but saying nothing regarding his position. He received the formal invitation to the republican caucus Saturday, but declined to say whether he would attend.

Nye has shown more indications of falling in line than La Follette. The question of the legality of his appointment is being studied by Senator Goff, of West Virginia, of the senate elections committee. It is generally believed that his right to the seat from North Dakota will not be questioned by the senate.

There was some displeasure noted among republican leaders Wednesday because of the announcement of the conciliatory move Tuesday from Senator Watson, of Indiana, on the ground that it was premature and unnecessary. It was pointed out that the publicity was unfortunate, since it has attracted attention on the move and revealed the opposition of Senator Butler.

Butler Stand Uncertain. Whether Butler would go so far as to stand up in the caucus Saturday, provided La Follette and Nye attend, and demand that they be ousted, is not known. It appears certain, however, that both of the young men, who are not welcomed by him as republicans, will be sure of his intentions before they decide to attend. Such an incident would be distinctly embarrassing.

There appears a sincere desire among most of the republican leaders to initiate these two senators as republicans. If they act afterward in a fashion contrary to accepted republican principles, there will be time enough to see about shutting them out, these leaders argue.

MRS. ELDER DIES AT HOME HERE; WAS WELL KNOWN

Mrs. J. T. Elder, 41, of 196 Oakland avenue, died Wednesday afternoon at her home.

She was a member of St. Paul's Methodist church and well-known in this city.

She is survived by her husband; her mother, Mrs. Ludie Frey; three sisters, Mrs. H. Clay, Mrs. J. E. Carroll, of Orlando, Fla., and Mrs. C. H. Barton, and three brothers, F. P. Frey, and G. T. Frey, of Savannah.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon from the residence. Rev. W. H. Boring will officiate and interment will be in West View cemetery with H. M. Patterson & Son in charge.

Macon Family Gives College Scholarship For Lanier Students

Athens, Ga., December 2.—(Special.)—Announcement was made today by Chancellor C. M. Snelling that Mrs. W. H. Williamson, of Macon, has established a scholarship at the University of Georgia in honor of her son, the late Charles H. Williamson.

The scholarship is for Lanier high graduates and the net revenue will support one student at the university. One hundred shares of Bibb Manufacturing company stock was given for a board of trustees comprising W. D. Anderson, J. E. Hall and Morris Michael, will administer the fund.

ERNEST SEAMANS DIES AT LOCAL HOSPITAL

Ernest Seamans, 52, of 36 Murray Hill avenue, Kirkwood, died Wednesday at a local hospital. He was employed in the office of the Cherry Transfer and Storage company.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Miss Dorothy Seamans; two sons, Ernest Lee Seamans and Carl Barth Seamans; his mother, Mrs. E. J. Seamans; a sister, Mrs. A. J. Baskin, of Carrollton, and two brothers, Dr. J. O. Seamans and Dr. Julius Seamans. He was the grandson of the late Judge Obadiah Seamans, of Rockledge.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon from the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son, Rev. W. T. Hamby will officiate and the body will be sent to Chipley Friday morning for interment.

REDUCTION IN RATES ON MEAT IS ORDERED

Washington, December 2.—(AP)—Railroads were ordered today by the interstate commerce commission to reduce rates by February 10 on fresh meats moving eastward from western packing houses.

The charge for moving 100 pounds of fresh meat from Chicago to New York, now 87 cents, was ordered reduced to 79 cents, with rates to the east from all other packing points cut in proportion, so that after the revision they would maintain the present relationship with Chicago rates.

The commission's action was brought about by complaints from nearly all of the larger western packing concerns, who contended that live stock could be transported from Chicago eastward at a charge which made the rates on the product for similar movements unjust. Representatives of live stock producers and the American Farm bureau federation opposed any sharp reduction in the meat rates.

W. & A. HEARING ENTERS THIRD DAY

Chattanooga, Tenn., December 2.—(Special.)—Officials of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway company held the witness box today in the Broad street hearing testified that they valued the three and six-tenths acres to be taken from the 27-acre terminal tract at $1,000,000. The sum of $800,000 of this total amount is the value of strips to be taken from the Western and Atlantic railroad land and $200,000 for the strip to be taken from the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway land.

This is based, according to testimony offered Wednesday morning by H. H. Cartwright, valuation engineer for the N. C. & St. L., who was the first witness called, upon a valuation of approximately $600,000 for all the land in the 27-acre terminal. The total amount the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway company is asking the city for damages from the opening of Broad street is $1,184,400, including $159,400 for re-arranging for damage to buildings.

This figure also includes a state of Georgia's claim for damages against the city, it is understood, as this state previously agreed to settle with the Nashville road for its right-of-way. It does not include claims of the Shelton mills, Brock Candy company and the Alabama Great Southern railroad.

Four Witnesses Heard. Four witnesses were examined during the morning. They were H. H. Cartwright, engineer for the Nashville road; James S. Buchanan, of Detroit, formerly with the interstate commerce commission in valuation department; H. H. Trabue, assistant to the general manager and chairman of the valuation committee of the Nashville road; and John R. Evans, local real estate man and representative of the state railroad commission.

Examination of witnesses was conducted largely by Frank Spurlock, attorney for the Nashville road, and cross examination by City Attorney D. E. Tatum.

The city of Chattanooga seeks to condemn, as was brought out in the testimony, 2.22 acres of W. & A. railroad or state of Georgia land and 1.414 acres of N. C. & St. L. railway land. During the course of the testimony the Nashville road attempted to show that the company would derive no incidental benefit from opening of this street through its yards. Witnesses even testified that it would decrease the value of the property for railroad purposes as streets were always considered a detriment to railroads. He explained that this property has been used for around 70 years for railroad purposes by the Nashville road, and even longer than this for railroad purposes, explaining that as far back as 1839 was staked off for railroad purposes.

This was the year the Indians were driven out of this section of the country.

Mr. Buchanan concurred in statements by Mr. Cartwright concerning the method of appraising railroad property, pointing out that this was the same method followed by the interstate commerce commission. Mr. Buchanan was brought here by the railroad as a witness because he appraised this property in 1916 for the interstate commerce commission. Judge Allison asked the witness if the same method of valuation was used in valuing the property for the Alabama Great Southern, and Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific by the interstate commerce commission.

Mr. Buchanan said it was. Mr. Evans explained that he was appointed by Judge Conner and the city to represent the state public utilities and railroad commission in the assessment of its local property.

Explains Testimony. By local property, Mr. Evans explained that this was only that property on the outer fringe of the railroad terminal used for commercial purposes, and did not include any of the terminal property. Mr. Evans concurred in figures presented by Mr. Cartwright, stating that he thought $1,000,000 to be a fair value of the property which the city proposes to take for the opening of Broad street.

Mr. Evans was asked to file a copy of his report for this past year to the railroad commission as exhibit "A" to his testimony.

Thursday's session will be devoted to hearing the city's testimony. Mr. Tatum, J. B. Silzer and others will represent the city. Mr. Tatum reserved the right to recall Mr. Evans to the stand Thursday, after he had filed his report as exhibit "A."

The only clash in the hearing today arose over questions propounded to Mr. Evans as to the wide divergence in his valuation of the property for tax assessment purposes and for the present appraisal, comparative figures indicating that the taxing value, as he expressed it, of the land, was far less than half of its appraisal value of $1,000,000.

CHAIRMAN TRAMMELL RETURNS TO OFFICE. It is not likely that the city of Chattanooga will be able to condemn street right-of-way through the Georgia-owned W. & A. railroad property in that city, in the opinion of Chairman W. Paul Trammell, of the Georgia public service commission, who returned to his office at the capital Wednesday after attending the opening of condemnation proceedings Tuesday in Chattanooga.

Chairman Trammell is of the opinion that the proposed new streets will never be cut through the Georgia property, regardless of the decision of the court as to the legal right of the city of Chattanooga to do it.

"It's too expensive a proposition for the city of Chattanooga to undertake," he said.

MANCHESTER TO PAVE WITHOUT BOND ISSUE

Manchester, Ga., December 2.—(Special.)—At the regular meeting of the commissioners of this city this week an ordinance was adopted providing for the paving of a portion of Main and Broad streets.

The ordinance provides for paving four blocks and is to be done without a bond issue. Work will commence during the early part of next year and will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

A white-way was recently installed on a portion of Main, Broad and Second streets and it is this section that will be paved.

Famous Railroad Bands Are Scheduled Features of Radio Show Here Next Week

The Georgia Railroad band, shown above, and the Atlanta & West Point Railroad band, the former from Augusta and the latter from Montgomery, Ala., will furnish musical features at the big radio exposition here next week and both bands will broadcast numbers on the Saturday night program at the city auditorium.

Among features arranged for Atlanta's first national Radio-Electrical exposition which opens next Monday at the auditorium for a week's engagement, are the crack bands of the Atlanta and West Point railway and the Georgia Railroad, both of which will broadcast from the Crystal studio on Saturday as one of the main features of that day.

The Atlanta and West Point band, composed of 40 musicians, with headquarters in Montgomery, is known all over the south and boasts of the only girl major-domo and girl drummer in the world. Miss Margaret Paul is the major-domo. She led a parade through the streets of Atlanta when the band was here playing for the baseball games between

Fort Worth and Atlanta for the Dixie championship.

Georgia Road's Band. The Georgia Railroad band is equally as famous, and has its headquarters in Augusta. It has played in many cities throughout the country and created favorable comment everywhere.

In addition to playing at the auditorium Saturday afternoon and night, the bands, under the combined leadership of Miss Paulin, will parade through the streets of the city Saturday morning.

The two bands have been secured through the cooperation of Charles A. Wickersham, president of the Atlanta and West Point and the Georgia railroads.

In addition to having the two bands come to Atlanta, Mr. Wickersham's nephew, Chester Wickersham Kitchen, is in my opinion," said Chairman Trammell.

He pointed out that the property it was proposed to condemn was some of the most valuable in the Tennessee city. That portion of it owned by Georgia is only a small part of all that would be necessary to carry out the plan, he said, and yet the Georgia property alone is valued at over a million dollars.

"The only way the city could finance the undertaking would be by a bond issue," said Mr. Trammell, "and I don't believe the voters of Chattanooga would authorize it."

Mr. Trammell pointed out that the new business blocks which would be created would be in direct competition with owners and occupiers of the present business section of the city and he added that there are already many vacant stores to be seen in Chattanooga.

ENGLAND PLANNING MOVE TO PROMOTE FILM PRODUCTION

London, December 2.—(AP)—The house of commons today heard a version of the complaint often raised by the English papers that American motion picture films give an entirely false impression of British life and manners.

Sir William Henry Dawson, conservative member for Kensington, said it was desirable that British life should be presented by British-made films. He wanted to know whether the government intended to introduce legislation compelling English motion picture theaters to include a certain percentage of British films in their programs so as to stimulate British production.

Arthur Samuel, parliamentary secretary for the navy, said the government was considering such action.

What Is Emory Going to Do About It?

(No. 10 of a Series of Talks on Higher Education in the South)

For several weeks we have been outlining the needs of higher education in the South, especially at Emory University. Now you may justly inquire, "What is Emory going to do about it?"

A $10,000,000 expansion program—$3,500,000 for new buildings and $6,500,000 for endowment—covering a period of ten years, is Emory's answer.

The endowment needs to be cared for by this ten-year program are $2,000,000 for the School of Medicine; $2,000,000 for the Wesley Memorial Hospital; $1,000,000 for the new Teachers' College; $500,000 for the Graduate School; $500,000 for the School of Theology; $500,000 for the department of religious education and social service; and $250,000 for physical training.

The principal buildings to be constructed are a $600,000 Teachers' College building, a $500,000 students' building and gymnasium, a $400,000 auditorium, a $200,000 dining hall, two $200,000 dormitories, a $200,000 nurses' home, a $175,000 general administration building, a $150,000 history and language building, a $150,000 pathology building, and a $100,000 social service building.

With a well-founded faith in the South which it serves, Emory University looks confidently toward the realization of this practical vision of enlarged service to humanity.

A copy of this series of talks will be sent upon request.

MYSTERY SLAYING OF RICH FARMER PUZZLES OFFICIALS

Wichita, Kan., December 2.—(AP)—With two bullets lodged in his brain inflicted by an unknown assailant, William Easton, 52, wealthy farmer of Valley Center, 12 miles north of here, died at a Wichita hospital today. He was found on a country road yesterday and died without regaining consciousness.

Authorities do not believe that Easton committed suicide. Gripped in his hands when his body was found was a .22 caliber rifle. At one side were two empty cartridges. No powder burns were found on his face or hat.

Tracks around the wounded man were not made by Easton's boots.

BRITISH WITHHOLD DECISION ON IRISH BOUNDARY AWARD

London, December 2.—(AP)—The Irish boundary commission's award will not be issued for the present, Premier Baldwin announced in the house of commons today after consultation with President Cosgrave of the Free State cabinet.

The withholding of the decision has considerably eased the tension of the situation and given rise to the belief that the Free State and Ulster will themselves reach a settlement on the broad basis of the existing boundary. This will be subject to financial arrangements necessitated by the Irish treaty, whereby the Free State agreed to assume a percentage of the United Kingdom's public debt, variously estimated at $500,000 pounds, sterling, to $10,000,000 annually, but of which nothing has been paid yet.

ON January 1st the Citizens and Southern Bank will place to the credit of its saving depositors approximately $300,000. This amount represents interest earned by saving accounts since July 1st.

On the first of last July another $300,000 was added to the same accounts, making $600,000 that we have paid our saving depositors this year for the privilege of taking care of their money for them.

If you will make a deposit in the savings department in any one of our offices before the close of business on December 5th, we will credit your account with a full month's interest on January 1st.

Jumped Fence To Catch Foul Fly; Drew Attention Of Semi-Pro Manager

Following is the first article of a series, entitled "Rounding Third," by Hugh A. Jennings, on his 34 years of major league baseball service.

On a hot July day in 1889, two teams of coal miners were playing a baseball game. It was a close game; perhaps the score was three in the ninth. Miner Mills was at bat. Maybe there were two out and the bases loaded.

Now, you must know that the diamond of the home team, Moosie, lay at the foot of a hill with a backstop behind the plate and a fence beyond the backstop. At that most dramatic of all possible moments in a ball game, the Miner Mills batter hit a high foul.

Baseball was the one great game in that mining section. Pittston, Moosie, Leighton, Wilkesbarre, Scranton and all the mining towns nearby went solidly for baseball. In the decade of darkness some of the games' best players were developed. Among those who got their start in the mines I recall Mordecai Brown, Ed Walsh, Stanley Harris, Jake Daubert, Bill Coughlin, the Coveleskes, Harry and Stanley, the O'Neals, Steve and Jimmy, Larry Doyle, Chick Shorten, Mike McNally, Joe Boley and the most picturesque of all umpires—Timothy Hurst.

PETRELS LEAVE TODAY FOR ROLLINS GAME IN MIAMI

Last Contest For Four Players

BY ALTON REDFEARN.

The Stormy Petrels will entrain this morning at 7:30 o'clock for Miami, where they meet Rollins college of Winter Park, Fla., in a post-season game Saturday. Coach W. A. Alexander, of Georgia Tech; Coach Chick Meehan, of New York university; and Coach Rip Major, of Wofford college, accompanied the Petrel squad. Meehan is a former star of Syracuse, the alma mater of Coach Harry Robertson.

In the workout yesterday afternoon more pep and ginger was manifested than has been recorded in the past three weeks. It was the last practice of the year on Herndon field, and Marvin Nix, Adrian Maurer, Bob Kilgore and Charlie Corless will probably never practice there again. They will be lost to the Petrels at the close of this school year by graduation.

The practice consisted mostly of signal drill and tackling the dummy, but was of longer duration than any held this week. Coach Robertson lectured to his charges once more yesterday, doing his utmost to prime the boys for the game Saturday. He realizes that after such a long schedule without any let-up, it will be hard to go into battle with the right mental attitude.

The team will be on the train all during the day today and tonight, and consequently there will be no practice today, except a few lectures from Coach Robertson while en route to Miami. A workout is scheduled to be held in the new stadium at Coral Gables, sometime Friday. The stadium will be dedicated Saturday when the Petrels and Rollins lock horns.

The following men made the trip to Miami: Carroll Nix, Corless, Goldsmith, Justus, Cousins, Hardin, Campbell, Maurer, Kilgore, White, Perkins, Perkers, Moseley, Guthrie, Hutson, Sims, Walsh, Garlington, Redfearn, Hancock, Chestnut and Shepherd.

Drake Gridders Would Play Game in Florida

If permission can be gained from the governing body of the Missouri Valley conference, Drake gridders are willing to accept the bid from Jacksonville, Fla., to play a post-season game with an eastern team as yet unnamed.

Coach O. M. Solem, however, believes the team should receive a large guarantee for the benefit of its new home.

He points to the fact that the University of Missouri was allowed to play on the Pacific coast last season in order to earn stadium funds.

Baseball's Supreme Judge Holds Court in Atlanta

BY H. C. HAMILTON.

Paying a running, unheralded visit to Atlanta, Judge Kennesaw Mountain Landis, the high commissioner of baseball, shook his shaggy white locks at the Biltmore hotel Wednesday while he listened to two trouble episodes in the conduct of professional, organized baseball, posed briefly while photographers "shot" him, and dashed away with Dr. W. H. Lewis, of Rome.

He arrived early in the morning, immediately called a session of the supreme court of organized baseball, and got down to business.

With one sweep of the hand which formerly ruled from the bench of the United States district court at Chicago, Judge Landis decreed that Pitcher Smythe, of the Augusta club at the South Atlantic league, is entitled to the sum of $3,500, which had paid into its coffers by the Philadelphia club of the National league.

The Phillies bought the pitcher from Augusta, but were not aware that he had applied for his free agency. The right of the Phillies to negotiate with Augusta for the player was not questioned, but the $3,500 was given by Santa Claus Landis to the player.

The other question brought up involved an intricate mass of correspondence through which a player of the Cotton States league sought to transfer his services from one club to another so that the club he favored might sign him to the St. Louis National league club, became so amazing that the commissioner decided he would have to interview the owners of the Monroe and Jonesboro clubs before he could decide which one was entitled to the services of the player.

Just as energetic as ever, as foretold in his statements and meet in his examination of the questions involved, the judge rushed through what he had to do and then leaped into Dr. Lewis' automobile for a quick trip to Rome.

"I'm off for 30 hours of recreation," he shouted as the car left the Biltmore hotel.

Asked if he were going farther south for some golf, the judge sadly answered that he was not.

"I'm too busy," he said.

On the line of the Williams, tackle, and Lovette, center, was outstanding. Williams is a rummy player, a keen student of football and a hard man to get by. Lovette was a terror on defense, and on top of it all, handled his snapping back duties in perfect form.

TWO MISSOURI CAPTAINS NAMED

Columbia, Mo., December 2.—(AP)—The University of Missouri Tigers, Missouri valley champions, will have two football captains next year. An election today resulted in a tie between Pete Jackson, of St. Louis, and R. F. Baechus, of Kansas City, both seniors next year. C. L. Brewer, director of athletics, said the two would alternate in piloting.

Baechus is an all-conference end and Jackson an all-conference fullback.

EPWORTH CAGE PLAY OPENS DEC. 14

The Epworth League Athletic association held its weekly meeting at the Ansley hotel Wednesday evening to discuss final plans for the organization of the coming basketball season.

The rules that are to be used in the league this season were read and discussed by the managers of the teams present.

The date for starting will be December 14 and at that time 18 teams go into action for the season's grind to determine the league championship. There are a number of new teams that will come into the league later in the season and these will be placed in another league the first of January.

The Oakland City boys' and girls' teams have reentered and will try to rob both of the banners as they did last season. College Park will be present and it will try to oust the fast Oakland City outfit.

College Park was the runner-up last season. Members of the league will meet this week and draw up the schedule that the teams will work under and will place the teams in suitable leagues.

The teams that have entered to date are: College Park (boys and girls), Druid Hills (boys and girls), Trinity (boys and girls), St. John's (boys), Grant Park (boys), Canfield View (boys), Wesley Memorial (boys and girls), Oakland City (boys and girls), Calvary (boys), Grace (boys), St. Mark's (boys and girls), Park Street (boys and girls).

SMITHIES OFF FOR MIAMI GAME

BY BEN COTHMAN.

Accompanied by Coaches Tolbert, Alexander and Bennett, student managers and students of Tech High school, 17 Smithies will leave this morning from the Terminal station at 8:45 o'clock, headed for Miami and the last game of the season with Miami High school Saturday afternoon.

This is the second long trip that the Smithies have taken within ten days, and the results of these, coupled with the Boys' High game Tuesday, have left the Tech High squad in a crippled condition.

Although there are no serious injuries, a number of the first-string men are suffering from lameness, while Cook is troubled with a charley horse that followed the Pine Bluff game last Thursday.

The defeat by Boys' High Tuesday did not take any of the Gold team's spirit, for the team realized before it went in the game that previous records did not count in a Tech High-Boys' High encounter and that the breaks would most likely decide the game.

Stiff opposition will be met Saturday afternoon in Miami High school, which has a very fast team this year. The Smithies will receive a preliminary game with a team from Jacksonville and Tampa this year.

The game will be a preliminary to the Oglethorpe-Rollins game, which will decide Miami's new stadium. It is a big event in Miami and reports indicate that a large crowd will be on hand to witness both games.

On Train Day and Night. Tech High will be on the train all of today and tonight, and has had little practice since Tuesday, taking part in a light workout yesterday afternoon.

The following men will probably line up Saturday: Ends—Heard and Martin; tackles—Rasmussen and Maddox; guards—Griffin; center—Davidson; quarter—Cook and Vaughn; halves, and Parrshall, full.

MARIST WON'T CLAIM TITLE

Although the Blue Cadets of Marist were defeated in their seven games of the late season, Coach Joe Bean is not going to allow his boys to set up any championship claim whatsoever.

Coach Bean, along with his players and supporters, is content to honor already won and has no idea of claiming anything, although his team was the only Atlanta prep eleven that won through the season undefeated.

A review of Marist's campaign, which among other things, left two G. I. A. eleven prone in the wake of the Blue Cadets, reveals that the Marist outfit scored a grand total of 188 points against the opposition's 13.

Boys' High and Griffin High were the two G. I. A. clubs defeated, while Darlington High, Sixth District Aggies and Cartersville were given severe drubbings.

Van Houten, quarterback, and Brooks, fullback, bore the brunt of Marist's offense during the season.

Van Houten, in addition to being a fine field general and brilliant broken field runner, is adept both at throwing and receiving passes. Coach Bean has expressed the opinion that Brooks was the best prep fullback in Atlanta this season.

On the line of the Williams, tackle, and Lovette, center, was outstanding. Williams is a rummy player, a keen student of football and a hard man to get by. Lovette was a terror on defense, and on top of it all, handled his snapping back duties in perfect form.

WOFFORD GETS S. C. GAME

Columbia, S. C., December 2.—(AP)—Wofford college has been given the last open date on the University of South Carolina football schedule for 1932. It was announced here today. The game will be played in Columbia October 15.

The schedule: September 25—Erskine at Columbia. October 2—Maryland at Columbia. October 9—North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

October 15—Wofford at Columbia. October 21—Clemson at Columbia (state fair).

October 27—Citadel at Orangeburg. November 6—V. P. I. at Richmond. November 13—Furman at Columbia.

November 20—North Carolina State at Columbia.

A. U. TO PLAY HERE SATURDAY

Atlanta's football followers will have an opportunity to witness one of the most colorful football games of the local season Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock on Spiller field when Atlanta University and Talladega college from Talladega, Ala., meet.

It will be the last football game of the local season and was arranged as a post-season affair, due to the intense rivalry that exists between two of the leading colored teams of the south.

BY NORMAN E. BROWN

I herewith present my choices for the mythical all-Eastern football team of 1932.

The selection of the men to receive whatever honor may go with said recognition has been much more difficult than that of choosing the far west all-star team.

Consider the eastern situation: The backfields of the Atlantic section included, among others, these halfbacks:

Sweden Oberlander, of Dartmouth. Tryon, of Colgate.

Falling, of Yale. Lane, of Dartmouth. Carr, of Syracuse.

Weich, of Pittsburgh. Freeman and Douglass, of Pennsylvania. Dignan, of Princeton.

Quarters: Graham, of Fordham. Bunnell, of Yale. Pease, of Syracuse.

Foley, of Columbia. Fullbacks: Gustafson, of Pittsburgh. Al Krue, of Pennsylvania.

From this list can be selected half a dozen backfield combinations that could hold their end against any mythical eleven.

I believe Graham is the best field general in the east today. His brainy leadership, as well as his all-around mechanical genius, was one of the outstanding factors in Fordham's success.

Pitted against a powerful array of opponents this team not only showed great driving power but great defensive strength. And Graham directed both the offense and defense. I am not making second team choices in these sectional teams, but I believe he is the best defensive tackle of the East.

As far as the halves are concerned there can be no question regarding Oberlander. He is the outstanding backfield man of the entire district.

The hesitancy comes in placing Tryon, of Colgate, ahead of Jake Slagle, of Princeton.

Both are wonderful backs. Slagle has played brilliant ball all season. It is possible, however, that his long run in the Princeton game against Yale, coupled with the surprising victory itself, has had some effect in placing Slagle. Tryon, however, has played brilliant football and has been the big star of the Colgate team all season, and has ranked among the leading scorers of the whole country. Scoring must be considered. I believe, also, that Tryon is a more versatile man.

As to the fullbacks, Pitt's early reverses caused some critics to give the team the go-by. Its later games, however, showed its real strength and Gustafson played a leading part in those successes. He is a hard line plunger, a heady, speedy runner on end plays, and a versatile man. He has the call over Krue.

The line deserves weighty consideration. In addition to the two chosen, were Thayer of Penn. McMillan, of Pittsburgh and Lee, of Princeton.

Tackles in addition to Joss and Wilson were Sprague, of Army; Parker, of Dartmouth, and Coady, of Harvard.

Guards, besides Kilgore and Diehl, were Tripp, of Harvard and Sturhahn, of Yale.

Quite obviously, in selecting an all-star team one snaps at a chance of keeping a great combination intact.

Weighted separately, both Oberlander of Dartmouth and Tully of the Green team belong on any mythical eleven in the eastern sector. But together they form the greatest forward passing combination in the east, if not the best in the country.

Edwards of Yale, Diehl shared with Tully, is Tully's equal as an end. Captain Joss of Yale and Wilson of Penn. at the tackles, will open a hole for any backfield man. Both have good defensive men. I believe Joss is the best defensive tackle of the East.

Kilgore of Harvard showed his value as a guard in that scoreless tie with Yale. Diehl shared with Captain Parker, of Dartmouth, the line honors on that team. He is a powerful man, a stonewall defensive player, and a hard line breaker.

Afield, of Cornell stands out next to McMillan at center. This despite the fact that a mediocre team was gathered around him.

Both are wonderful backs. Slagle has played brilliant ball all season. It is possible, however, that his long run in the Princeton game against Yale, coupled with the surprising victory itself, has had some effect in placing Slagle. Tryon, however, has played brilliant football and has been the big star of the Colgate team all season, and has ranked among the leading scorers of the whole country. Scoring must be considered. COBB ADDING SOUTHPAW TALENT

BY IRWIN M. HOWE.

Ty Cobb having had more than the ordinary luck with left handers is still signing southpaws. During the last season left handers figured in considerably more than one-third full games played by the Tigers and at one time and another southpaws engaged in almost two-thirds of the games. There was no question but that such eminent portside flingers as Leonard, Whitehill and Wells earned their pay, Whitehill having appeared in 240 innings.

Now comes Carl Owens Hubbell as the latest to bid for favors with Detroit. It size counts for anything Hubbell should be able to hold his own with the others. At least the scouts who saw the six-footer hurl for Oklahoma City during the past season think so.

Hubbell went from the high school grounds at Meeker, Okla., to become the mainstay of the Cushing team in the state league before he was of age. He was so good with Cushing that he was sold in the middle of the season to Oklahoma City but typhoid laid him low and he could not report until the following spring.

Hubbell was a busy man with the Oklahomaans during the past season. He appeared in 45 games and pitched a total of 278 innings, winning 17 and losing 14 games. Like most left handers he was wild enough, but he was rapidly getting control at the end of the season. In his records are included 11 hit batsmen and five wild pitches. He was hit safely a trifling over one hit per inning and 170 runs were made off of him. He passed 111 batters and struck out 96.

Although Hubbell grew up in Meeker, Okla., he was born at Golden City, Mo., June 22, 1903. He stands six feet one inch in height and weighs 170 pounds, about the size of Co's himself. He is not entirely helpless at bat as he accumulated a batting average of .214 in the Western.

CHAPMAN IN JUDGE'S HANDS

Hartford, Conn., December 2.—(AP)—The fate of Gerald Chapman, convicted mail robber and murderer, rested tonight in the hands of the United States judge Edwin S. Thomas, of Norwalk, Conn.

Judge Thomas' decision on Chapman's application for a writ of habeas corpus, due to be made public not earlier than the middle of next week, will determine whether the convicted man will be returned to the federal penitentiary to complete a 23-year sentence for robbing the United States mails, or be hanged by the state of Connecticut for the murder of a policeman in New Britain in October, 1924.

Arguments Completed.
After a day spent by both sides in a lengthy presentation of arguments revolving about the right of the state to claim jurisdiction over a man still under sentence by the federal government, the attorneys completed their summations as darkness settled over the state prison walls. Another step in the effort to slip the noose from Chapman's neck had been taken.

If Judge Thomas decides against issuance of the writ, the United States penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., will receive Chapman to complete his term. Rejection of the appeal there, however, would carry the fight to the United States circuit court of appeals. Rejection of the appeal there, however, would carry the fight to the United States supreme court.

Both sides will be given until 3 p. m. Friday to file briefs with Judge Thomas.

Chapman Imperturbable.
Slumped down in his chair, encircled by four members of his legal staff, Chapman sat imperturbable through most of the proceedings.

Today's session at the state prison at Wethersfield, a suburb of Hartford, was a resumption of the hearing on Chapman's petition for a writ of habeas corpus which opened Monday. Adjournment was taken at that time to give Chapman's counsel time to reply to the state and federal governments.

Counsel for Chapman sought to determine by what right William H. W. Scott, of the state prison, had changed the state's position from a federal to a state charge, without notifying authorities at Washington or elsewhere. Chapman was convicted of the murder of a policeman by the superior court of Hartford county last February.

Warden Examined Slightly.
Warden Scott was subjected to a sharp examination by Mr. Groehl. He acknowledged not having notified the authorities at Washington of the change in status.

Groehl then sought to bring out that Scott, in his return to the application for the writ, had declared that the federal government was aware of all actions taken by the state officials. This, he contended, would be taken to include the change in Chapman's status as a federal prisoner up to that time.

ALLEN TO PREFER FIREMAN CHARGES

fire department, Councilman Allen specified three charges he would prefer against the fireman, upon conviction of any one of which, he said, the fire committee has the power to disqualify the violator from the department. These charges as defined by Mr. Allen were all from section 41, and were:

1. Conduct unbecoming a fireman.

2. Breach of discipline.

3. Indifference to duties.

Councilman Allen said he merely wished to advise members of the committee of his plans and to entertain any suggestions.

Attitude of Members.
Councilman Morris stated he would insist on the fireman receiving formal notice and attending the committee session in person before taking any action.

Alderman Guy Dobbs, chairman of the fire committee, endorsed the stand taken by Mr. Allen.

"When I find any man disrespectful to his superior officer or any other member of the committee, I am in favor of firing him, and I want to go on record as such. I have no personal feelings in the matter. I don't know the name of the fireman referred to by Councilman Allen."

A ripple of mirth broke out at the meeting when Alderman Dobbs asked:

How Doctors Treat Colds and Flu

To break up a cold overnight or to cut short an attack of grippe, influenza, sore throat or tonsillitis, physicians and druggists recommend Calomel, the purified and refined calomel compound tablet that gives you the effects of calomel and salts combined, without the unpleasant effects of either.

One or two Calomels at bed-time with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning your cold has vanished, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please—no danger.

Councilman Morris to define his version of "heated political discussion," which is a violation of the fire department rules.

"My construction of the term 'heated political discussion' is that which involves a man out of a job trying to get one," Mr. Morris said.

Captain Terrell Summoned.
Captain John Terrell was called before the committee to explain his reasons for moving his family outside the city limits. He explained that his wife was in bad health and that, on advice of physicians, he had moved her to a home seven miles from the center of the city.

Captain Terrell further explained that he had been spending nights at the engine house. The committee voted to allow Captain Terrell to maintain his residence outside the city for an indefinite period.

HOLD-UP WAVE STRIKES CITY

avenue, when two white bandits drove up Central avenue to Alice street and around in Alice street to the rear of the store. He told Call Officers W. A. Goode and W. F. Bullard that he saw one of the two white men get out of the car and, after talking with the driver for a moment, examine a pistol.

Asked for Shoe Polish.
Sensing something in the air, young Maxey watched the bandit enter the store, where the man asked the proprietor for a box of shoe polish. He produced a small box of polish from a counter near the cash register, and the bandit told him: "That's the wrong kind." The proprietor turned again to secure a different type of polish, when he faced the bandit again, he looked into the barrel of a blue steel revolver. "Shut up and put 'em up," he was told, and obeyed as the bandit ransacked the cash drawer.

James Watts, 16-year-old negro porter, who lives in the rear of 100 Pulliam street, entered the store from the rear room with a tray and some glasses. When he took in the situation, he dropped the glasses and screamed in terror. The bandit then took a last glance about the store to see if he had missed anything. Seeing Maxey and a chum, Herman Thomas, 15, of 208 Fulton street, whom Maxey had called to the scene, Maxey watched through the plate glass window, he grimaced in the direction, and they withdrew hurriedly.

The bandit then gave the store proprietor a patting injunction to turn around, and backed out of the store, joining his accomplice in the automobile for a quick escape. Their car was painted yellow, and had no tail light. Witnesses said the driver was said to have worn a brown hat, while the bandit who entered the store is described as about 28 years old, five feet four inches tall, with dark, straight hair, blue suit with pin stripes and gray hat.

MUCH ENTHUSIASM AT CHEST MEETING

subscribed for $300,000,000 of war loans in 40 minutes.

"That is the Atlanta spirit," he said, "and any city that can make a showing like that can and will raise $300,000,000 in the next 40 minutes."

Major Cohen announced he would raise his personal subscription to the chest from $100 to $500 and declared any community that could raise $250,000 for an advertising campaign, can raise this sum for its community chest.

Mr. Wilson-Lawrence also referred to the Atlanta advertising campaign and the Shrine magazine campaign, both of which were successful, and declared the community chest campaign also must succeed.

The community chest is an obligation on the city, Mr. Atkinson said, adding that the city doesn't deserve to succeed if it failed to discharge such an obligation. He referred to the crisis in the affairs of the chest earlier this year, when a number of the leading citizens were called upon to increase their subscriptions so that the work of various institutions could be maintained and said it proved a good thing for the city, for it showed how important the chest was.

"These campaigns are helpful to you as workers and to the city," Mr. Atkinson asserted, "for they bring home to all the problems that confront the community and make civic leaders, spirit and make civic leaders. There is no cause for discouragement here. Atlanta will fill the chest this year."

Approximately 14,000 cards containing the names of subscribers of last year who had not been called upon yet this year were distributed among the trustees and efforts will be made to see all these prospects before the end of the week.

TARBUTTON DEATH CLAIM IS SETTLED

payment of the policies and the litigation first was brought by the receiver in Washington county, but because the company had offices located in another state, the case was transferred to the federal court.

Tanner, who was an employee of Rawlings, was convicted and given a life sentence, but an appeal for new trial has been granted. In a later trial, Rawlings was convicted of the murder of Tarbutton and given a life sentence. He also has filed petition for new trial.

Tarbutton, Tanner and several other men were prospecting for bauxite deposits on land owned by Rawlings and Tarbutton when the shot was fired. Tanner asserted the shot was accidentally fired, but the state charged that Tarbutton was killed as a result of a conspiracy between Rawlings and Tanner.

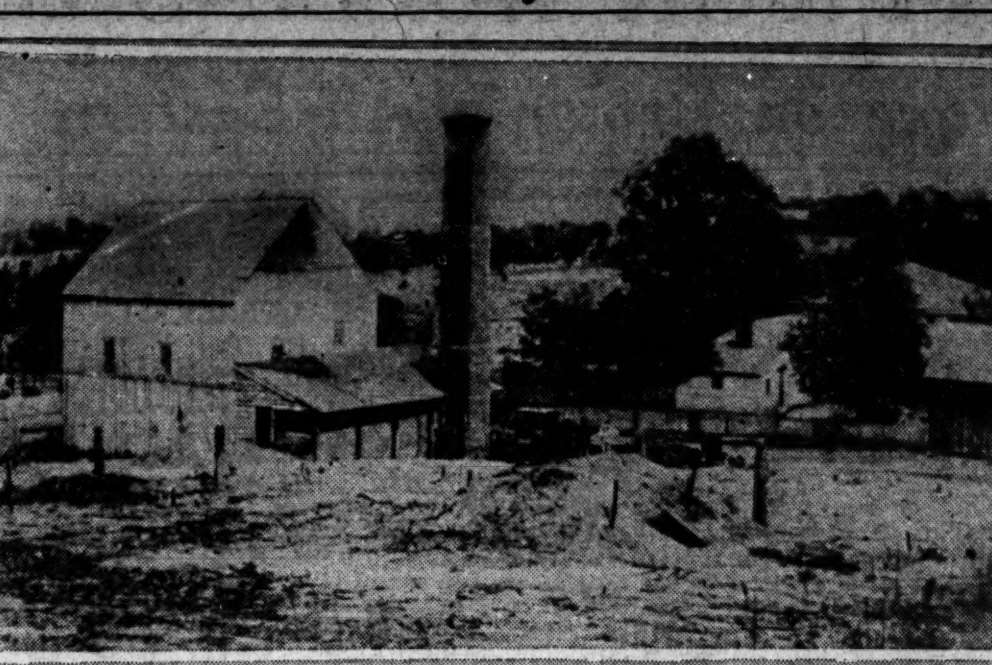

Receiver Dropped, Trustee Appointed For Oyster Beds

Tallahassee, Fla., December 2.—The Lee Center, bed oyster beds properties, consisting of several thousand acres of land in Florida, said to be worth millions of dollars, were taken over by the hands of receivers Tuesday and turned over to a trustee, H. G. Porter, a business man of Apalachicola, Florida.

The appointment of Porter met with approval of attorneys for all of the 3,500 stockholders in various parts of the country who invested their money in the Poplar enterprise. Poplar, now mayor of Apalachicola, was convicted several months ago of using the mails to defraud and the properties were placed in the hands of receivers at the request of some stockholders.

Porter's appointment will result in thousands of acres of the lands being placed on the market. Since the property was placed in the hands of a receivership, most of the oyster bed lands have been planted and supervised by the state.

Brotherton and Forsyth Streets in 1864

STORY OF ATLANTA BY SAM SMALL

Constitution building stands and the Terminal station spreads itself seemed to defy the axman, while the stretching chaparrals of scrub to the northward spelled more grubbing and the sweating than was fascinating to a prosperous farmer. The "argonauts" who came hopefully, slept on their saddles over night and with the dawn hit the long, long trail back "to whar we're at!"

Now and then among them some optimistic spirit felt the thrill of the invisible, developed the faith which he "the substance of things hoped for" and sure to be, and decided to camp on the conditions precedent.

The gregarious instinct, the communal spirit, is the gift of God to His created sons and daughters. It is the attraction of gravitation absorbed from nature by human nature. By force the family, the tribe, the nation, civilization and the church have been inchoated and have attained their world estates.

That "gang together" spirit, excited further by the hope of betterment of one's fortunes, brought other settlers hitherward, and after several years from the location of Terminus that drawing together began to press the future community. But the concentration was slow and sporadic.

"Cousin John" Thrasher was the first "boon" to speak, who believed he scouted a town growing forth here of the chinquapin thickets and amid the beauties of the dogwood tree. He was a young man with a hustling, adventurous streak in his make-up. His passion was to see large things happen and to help them grow. When he heard of Terminus and the State road project, he visualized a new town—a new and lucrative trading post—just that and nothing greater or grander. Fixing his mind's eye on the new opportunity, he little country store down the state road to come commonplace and cramped to hold him. He packed the portables of his stock and brought himself and his commodities to this embryo Eldorado.

"Cousin John" in many ways was a homespun genius. Those Atlantas who knew him in his elder days could well imagine the energy and enterprise that he brought to Terminus. He was the sort of stuff that pioneers and promoters are made of; fearless of savage or civilized men, ready for a fight as for a feast or a foot race. And if he did not, in the long run, contribute hugely to the factor, he did add those indispensable and estimable elements—enthusiasm, fraternity, industry and humorous sentiment.

COOLIDGE AIR BOARD BANS MITCHELL PLAN

called the "flaming coffin" has in three years flown 1,000,000 miles without a casualty, one board said.

As to the danger of air attack, the board says: "No airplane capable of making a transoceanic flight to our country with a useful military load and of returning to safety is now in existence."

The board lays emphasis upon two unsensational but vital points. First, aviation is developing so rapidly that recommendations can be only for the immediate future. Second, whatever is done to increase civil use of aircraft to spread familiarity with aircraft will make it easier to build up an expanded air service in time of war.

Without naming Colonel Mitchell, the board answers his declaration that the next war will be decided in the air with this remark: "The next war will start in the mud, as the last war did, in the mud."

Air Service Strength.
In an appendix the relative airplane strength of the leading powers is given as:

United States (excluding training planes), 1,423.
Great Britain (excluding training planes), 1,053.
France (excluding training planes), 5,642.
Italy (including training planes), 1,500.
Japan (including training planes), 1,300.

Discounting the training planes, which would be useless in war, the United States, by these figures, stands second to France in plane strength. However, the board places no faith in the argument that a large air force should be built to prevent war.

"The real road to peace rests not upon more elaborate preparations to impress war, but rather upon a more earnest disposition to accommodate wills," the report states.

Neither a department of national defense to combine the army and navy, nor a department of the air coordinate with the army and navy is desirable, the board holds. Some overlapping exists in the army and navy, but offsetting it, the board says, is the element of competition between the two services. In war, the president as commander-in-chief of the army and navy acts as a director of national defense and coordinates all activities to a single end. As to a separate air service, the board declares:

"We do not consider that air power, as an arm of the national defense, has yet demonstrated its value—certainly not in a country situated as ours—for independent operations of such a character as to justify the

Athlete's Races To End At Loew's Grand Theater

Preparations went forward rapidly Wednesday for the series of stunts to be staged in Atlanta next week by John J. Seiler, known far and wide as the "Flying Yank," with the title of "world's champion professional long distance runner and walker." Mr. Seiler's stunts are being sponsored by The Constitution, and through an arrangement perfected Wednesday by this newspaper with Loew's Grand Theater, that playhouse on Peachtree street will be the finishing place for the several marathon races and long-distance walks to be staged next week.

Mr. Seiler, who is quite a specimen of young manhood, 23 years old, 6 feet 1 inch tall, and weighing 168 pounds, will start out Monday from The Constitution office on a 50-mile walk, which he says he intends to complete within eight hours. An automobile locked in high gear, to illustrate the flexibility of the motor, will trail him in this walk.

On Wednesday Seiler will run 10 miles against an automobile locked in high gear with restrictions that the automobile must adhere to all traffic regulations, while he, on foot, will reserve the right to disregard traffic signals. On Friday, Seiler will stage a 25-mile race, running against an automobile, the same rules to apply as prevailed in the 10-mile race.

After these events Seiler will stage a run from Athens to Atlanta, a distance of 70 miles, to finish at Loew's Grand.

During his stay in Atlanta, Seiler will address high school boys as to how they may train themselves to be athletes. Seiler does not drink, smoke or relies chiefly on a vegetable diet.

DELAY QUESTIONING OF EX-PRESIDENT IN ST. PAUL PROBE
Washington, December 2.—(AP)—Examination of H. E. Byram, former president and now receiver of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, was temporarily suspended after further questioning at today's session of the interstate commerce commission inquiry into the road's financial plight.

H. L. Ekern, attorney of Wisconsin, and counsel for bondholders, asked and received permission to delay their cross-examination of Mr. Byram until further hearings are held at Chicago and E. L. Fisher, a director of the road, then gave details of the efforts that were made to keep the road out of receivership in spite of poor earnings and maturity of its bonded debt. Other officials of the line will be called tomorrow.

NAVY.
Appointment of assistant secretary of navy in charge of aviation. Carrying as extra members, captains, commanders and lieutenant commanders, who have specialized in aviation, to insure such promotion as would be necessary for the defense.

Giving temporary rank of captain, commander or lieutenant commander to any junior officer when detailed to aviation duty, and for which higher rank is proper.

Maintenance of extra flight pay and investigation of possibility of life and accident insurance for aviators.

Assignment of naval aviators to office of chief of naval operations and the bureau of navigation.

Command of flying activities and aircraft carriers to be confined to aviators.

Special decoration for heroism in aviation.

Inducements should be provided to hold technical officers in service.

Desirability of increasing use of enlisted men as pilots should be investigated.

AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY.
Adoption of policy of continuity in orders and of standard rate of replacement.

Give production orders only to companies which maintain design staffs of reasonable size and keep them active.

Recognition of proprietary rights in design.

Elimination of governmental competition with private industry, except where private enterprise impracticable.

Continuous development of experimental designs through government orders, at prices sufficient to sustain overhead, but necessary to maintain this phase of most modern examination.

Assistance to industry by governmental testing facilities and research staffs.

MYSTERY DEATH OF EX-CLERGYMAN DEFIES SOLUTION

Minneapolis, Minn., December 2.—(AP)—Homicide accomplished in a manner undetermined will be the coroner's finding in the death of Knute B. Birkeland, retired clergyman and business man, found dead in an untenanted house here yesterday.

Coroner Gilbert Senechal made this statement tonight, after experts at the University of Minnesota reported they had found no trace of poison in his post mortem examination.

Police continued to search for a woman giving the name of Rae Reynolds, who rented the apartment in which Birkeland's body was found. On November 20, she said the rent to December 1.

Birkeland disappeared November 24. His automobile was found two blocks from the untenanted house and neighbors said it had been there since noon of November 24, or four hours before the former clergyman disappeared.

LAWYER ASSAULTS RHINELANDER, SR.

White Plains, N. Y., December 2.—(AP)—Picturing Leonard Kip Rhinelander, son of a wealthy New York family, who is suing his malitio wife, Alice Beatrice Jones Rhinelander, for annulment of marriage, as the "docile slave at Alice's feet," the plaintiff, a son of a wealthy father, Attorney Isaac N. Mills occupied the entire court day in summing up for the plaintiff. He had not completed his summation when court adjourned for the day and indicated that he would require most of tomorrow for the task.

Mr. Mills, appealing to the white jury for a verdict in favor of his client on the basis of racial differences, asserted that this young man had brought himself into the young man himself.

He said that for years the elder Rhinelander has neglected Leonard; that not once had the father visited the boarding school in Connecticut which Leonard attended. He made a point of the fact that no one in the family knew of the existence of the son of a lawyer, who had been a defender of his allegedly backward client.

More than that, he said, it is a problem how much intelligence he has," the lawyer asserted. "At the beginning of his acquaintance with Alice, although he was 18 years old, intelligence tests show that his intellect was not above that of a normal boy of 14."

Phases of "Campaign."
The attorney reviewed what he called "Alice's regular campaign for her engagement to Leonard." This, he said, consisted of several phases, her continual mention in her letters of the incidents at the Hotel Marie Antoinette, where Rhinelander had lived on two occasions with her before their marriage; her promotion of his jealousy by making him feel that he was likely to lose her; by her continual reminders that she was making great sacrifices in turning down other men for Rhinelander.

Mills asserted Alice's confession to Leonard that she had had relations with another man before she met him was not consistent with her concealment of her negro blood. Everything she told Rhinelander, Mills said, was calculated to promote her case, but she knew that to reveal her race would be to "ruin everything." Mills then asserted that Rhinelander had returned from the west to take Alice in honorable marriage, but he did not realize that she had negro blood.

Kip Loved Alice.
The question which started the legal battle, that of color, Mills said, had been confessed by the defense but it had not been eliminated from the issue. Referring to newspaper interviews immediately after the marriage had become public, Mills said that Leonard then stood by his wife. "He loved her—that is the wonder of this case."

Throughout the day both principal parties to the suit sat calmly through the waves of oratory which flooded the crowded court room. Neither appeared greatly moved.

Just prior to adjournment, when Mills indicated he probably would require most of tomorrow for completion of his summation, Judge Justice Morschauer announced from the bench that in that case he probably would not charge the jury until Friday, when the jurors would be fresh and rested.

CONVICT SWALLOWS RAZOR BLADES. DEATH IS FEARED

Leavenworth, Kan., December 2.—(AP)—Having accidentally swallowed a razor blade broken in half, C. H. Mansfield, 34, an inmate of the federal penitentiary here, is making a desperate battle for life. Dr. A. F. Yabe, prison physician, assisted by a staff of army surgeons from Fort Leavenworth, are aiding Mansfield in his fight. The outcome is uncertain, the physician says.

Mansfield began a sentence of 15 months November 22. He was convicted at Tulsa, Okla., on a charge of violating the Dyer act.

Upon arrival at the prison Mansfield announced he had swallowed two safety razor blades. The night before he left the Tulsa jail he shaved. While shaving he placed the blades in his mouth. A friend gave him an unexpected friendly slap on the back. The jolt caused him to swallow the blades, he said.

THE TABLE OF CONTENTMENT
ON winter evenings, in vacation land, or at home for the summer, there is nothing which adds more to table contentment than an electric percolator, toaster and grill. Believe it or not—just ask your friends who own them.

Handy, operating as necessity prompts, whether for few or many, "brewing" coffee, browning toast, broiling delicacies—"no fuss, just leisure"—is the spirit which pervades the scene when these appliances are available.

Pre-Christmas Days Are Filled With Interesting Events

As the month of December advances, one's thoughts turn to the many interesting affairs that will fill the holiday season. In two or three weeks now, the influx of girls and boys from schools and colleges will be the thought of the moment, and already charming and delightful events are being planned to make of the Christmas season one to be remembered with joy and pleasure.

Affairs of the day, however, will keep one busy the early days of December. Aside from the numerous and delightful social and cultural affairs that fill each day, there is Christmas shopping to claim one's attention. Already the shops have taken on holiday attire. Christmas trees gay with brilliant ornaments and red and green wreaths, new and fresh, give the true spirit.

Brides-Elect To Be Honored.

Two brides-elect will be the center of social affairs today when Miss Aileen Harris is complimented by Miss Bessie White with a lovely luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club, and Miss Miriam Middleton is given a shower at "The Homestead" by Mrs. John Spalding and Miss Mary Brown Spalding. These two charming brides-elect will be the recipients of many parties in advance of their weddings.

Capital City Club Dance.

Initiating a series of dinner-dances will be the one at the Capital City club this evening. These will be lovely and interesting affairs that will continue throughout the winter months, gathering members, friends and visitors. Dinner will be served at 8 o'clock and dancing continue until 1 o'clock.

Other Affairs for Today.

Other affairs for the day will be the bridge-tee at which Mrs. John M. Flynn will entertain at her home on Myrtle street in honor of Mrs. W. H. Brittain, a charming acquisition to Atlanta society. Miss Lida Moll will give a bridge-tee at her home on Polo drive, gathering a group of friends.

Interesting Events.

The presentation of the "Passion Play" at the city auditorium at two performances today will be an interesting event, and the exhibition of the paintings of Oscar Giebert at the Atlanta Biltmore under the auspices of the Atlanta Art association will draw art lovers.

Many Box Parties

At Saturday Concert.

The concert by Elena Gerhardt, famous German lied singer, at the Atlanta Women's club auditorium at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, will be the occasion of a number of parties given by members of the Atlanta musical and society contingent in honor of visitors who will be in the city especially to attend the concert.

Mrs. Wilmer Moore will entertain a group of friends in compliment to Mrs. John M. Moore, of Buford, Ala. Among others in her box will be Mr. and Mrs. Henry Peeples, Mrs. Winship Nunnally and Miss Jaquelin Moore.

Boxes have been reserved by several others who will entertain guests at the concert, it was stated by officers of the Atlanta Music club, which is presenting Miss Gerhardt as the second artist of its Series Intime.

Georgia Society Gives

Annual Dinner in New York.

The Georgia society gave an annual dinner in New York on Monday, November 30, followed by dancing and entertainment. Supreme Court Justice William Harmon Black, formerly of Atlanta, is president of the society, which was formed 25 years ago by David Robinson, of Savannah, an active member at present.

In the past two years women have been admitted. Among the members are George Foster Peabody, Oscar S. Straus, Nathan Straus, Dr. John Alton Harris, Robert Adamson and Joseph Johnson.

Singing School

At College Park.

Quint costumes, male quartets, solos, duets and the stately minuet features of Ye Old Fashioned Singing school to be given by the College Park Music club Thursday evening at the city hall auditorium, College Park, for the public school music fund.

Mrs. W. W. Bateman, club president, is directing the play, assisted by Miss Christine Trimble, dramatic coach, and Miss Elizabeth Spangh, who is responsible for the beautiful dance figures.

Mrs. H. G. Matthews, chairman of ticket sale, reports a splendid advance sale.

Middleton-Hallman

Wedding Invitations.

Mrs. Walter Izard Middleton has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Miriam Bridge, to Harry Hightower Hallman, Wednesday, December 16, at high noon at Saint Luke's Episcopal church.

Miss Grant Honored by

Miss Mary Ann Carr.

Miss Harriett Grant, who leaves this week with relatives for a visit to Arizona, was honor guest at the bridge-tee at which Miss Mary Ann Carr entertained Wednesday at her home on Wesley road.

Vari-colored chrysanthemums were used to decorate the apartments where the game was played.

Miss Carr was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Clark Howell, Sr., her sister, Mrs. Clark Howell, Jr., and Miss Rosalie Howell of New York.

Brides-Elect Honored

At Lovely Luncheon.

Miss Aileen Harris and Miss Pauline Ware, two charming December brides-elect, were honor guests at the luncheon given Wednesday by Mrs. Joseph Moody at the Georgian Terrace.

The exquisitely appointed table had for its central decoration a silver bowl holding pastel-shaped flowers. Old-fashioned nosegays marked the place of each guest. The two brides-elect received a nosegay of sweet peas and completed tea was served in a private dining room on the mezzanine floor.

Those present were Miss Sophie Street, president; Miss Virginia White, vice president; Miss Josephine Clark, secretary and treasurer, and the following pledges: Misses Ruth Madden, Martha Misall, Myrtice Barker, Dorothy Strangward, Phoebe Rhett, Elizabeth Kimball, Esther Garrett, Hazel Stamps, Sarah Desaures, Marguerite Gunn and others.

Ware-Neal

Wedding Cards.

Mrs. and Mr. Albert Britton Ware have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Pauline Ross, to Bernard Neeson Neal, on Wednesday evening, December 16, at 8:30 o'clock, Saint Mark's Methodist church, Atlanta, Ga.

Hostesses at Giebert Exhibit.

Druid Hills Presbyterian Church P. T. A. Meet.

The Parent-Teacher association of Druid Hills Presbyterian church will hold its regular monthly meeting at the church on Friday evening, December 4, at 8 o'clock. An interesting program has been arranged. James Morton, who is prominent in Y. M. C. A. and church work of the city, will address the association.

Mr. and Mrs. Speer

Honor Miss Middleton

And Harry Hallman

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Speer were hosts at a lovely dinner party Wednesday evening at the regular mid-week dinner-dance at the Biltmore hotel in compliment to Miss Miriam Middleton and Harry Hallman, whose wedding will be an interesting social event of December 16.

The large table held in the center an oval decoration in the shape of a mound, formed of tiny white daisy chrysanthemums thickly studded with pink roses and sprayed with lilacs of the valley. A delicate tracery of ferns formed the outline of the floral mound. The place cards were miniature brides in dainty tulle skirts, and the favors were Parisian novelties suggestive of brides and weddings.

Mrs. Speer received her guests wearing a gown of Nile green tulle band in crystal embroidery. Miss Middleton's lovely costume was of flesh colored georgette crepe, studded in rhinestones. Miss Margaret Middleton, sister of the bride-elect, was an attractive figure wearing white, and Miss Mary Middleton, another sister, was attractively gowned in blue.

Covers were placed for Miss Middleton, Miss Mary Middleton, Miss Margaret Middleton, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Wight, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Watkins,

Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer, Miss Williams, Charles Gardner and Mrs. Speer.

Girls' Cotillion Club Elects Miss Ellen Newell President

The Girls' Cotillion Club of Atlanta was officially organized Wednesday afternoon at the Piedmont Driving Club, with Miss Ellen Newell elected president, and the initial dance scheduled to take place at the Biltmore Christmas eve, which falls on Thursday evening, December 24.

The members of the club propose to be hostesses at two brilliant dances during the season, and to make the Girls' Cotillion club a permanent ultra-smart social organization in Atlanta.

In every southern city society has followed this custom of forming a cotillion club from the unmarried members, their social affairs ranking always with the most brilliant balls of the season. The 1924-25 debutantes, in taking this step, have placed Atlanta within the realm of traditional southern hospitality.

The other officers of the club are: Miss Louise Nelson, vice president; Miss Harriett Shelden, secretary; Miss Will Hawkins, treasurer.

Invitations to join the club will be extended to a group of young girls outside the special circle forming the nucleus of the organization.

Study Class In American Art At Woman's Club

The art department of the Atlanta Woman's club held its first study class in American art on Tuesday morning, December 1, in the palm room. The plan of the program was an innovation. The first number was a talk by Mr. Bush Brown, instructor of architecture at the School of Technology, on pre-Revolutionary architecture and furniture, most carefully and chronologically carried out, showing the different phases of life and how it had affected architecture. One point he brought out was that the word "colonial" as applied to the particular style with which we are accustomed to associate it, is a misnomer; it should be "Georgian" as it originated in England under the reign of the Georges and was transported to the U. S. by the early settlers.

This talk was followed by one from Mrs. Gaertner on some of the artists of the period, Benjamin West in particular. She showed how it was his wonderful personality and charm which had led the people of his time to rate him so high as an artist and how it was now realized that he had been very much overrated.

Mrs. Pickering Robson, a guest in Atlanta, American born, but living now in England, married to a liberal descendant of Benjamin West, gave some exceedingly interesting details of his life. She told many things, culled from old letters and documents, which could not be withstood. The house captivated immediately and were with her from the moment she appeared from behind the soft blue curtains, being a group of lovely pink roses, before she spoke the first word.

Mrs. McMillin's reading, entirely from memory, was a Spanish play in three acts. Having lived so long in the Latin-American countries, her touch was almost that of a native. In her very nervous delivery, the background revealed the struggles, adventures, miseries and achievements of the Spanish people.

The whole play focused life in sunny Spain as it is found today in its freedom and philosophy. Mrs. McMillin's technique was indeed wonderful. Her creation of the characters, the action and scenes given in her beautifully modulated, musical voice was delightful. Malvaloca given as it was Tuesday evening proved it was being done by an artist born, not made.

We will look forward to a return visit of Mrs. McMillin at, we hope, not too remote a date.

An Unfortunate (?) Accident.
For the dinner-dance on Thanksgiving night at the Biltmore, one of Atlanta's fair belles had an unusually attractive date. She was very much excited over it, and was all eagerness, scarcely being able to await the arrival of the happy hour. In her very nervous delivery, the background revealed the struggles, adventures, miseries and achievements of the Spanish people.

Mrs. T. A. Rippey, formerly Miss Donna Stone, told of the bridge party she is arranging for December 15 for the benefit of the educational fund of the department. The young women now being assisted by this fund is a pupil of Mr. Rittenberg, of New York, and is considered by him to give promise of a brilliant future. Mrs. Rippey said she had enlisted the services of 20 young debutantes and matrons, each of whom were to sell as many tables as possible. She asked the co-operation of the department in making this one of the most brilliant affairs of the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. Little plans throughout, this course on American art, to have talks on the period, preceding the lesson. The principal topic of the next lesson, December 15, will be the Hudson River school. Also southern architecture of the period, especially from Georgia, rich in examples, will be studied.

Speaker's Beauty and Charm Sways Atlanta Audience In Drama League Reading

BY BEVERLY BURGESS.
The Drama League of Atlanta, since its very first organization, has stood for a cultural expression, of wonderful interest and enthusiasm, in the field of art and intellect.

The splendid effort which has always characterized this organization and been so successful in such tremendous achievements, is most praiseworthy. Such opportunities as are here afforded Atlantans, in hearing artists of note and accumulated culture, mean a great deal to our happiness and spiritual uplift.

"There is no darkness but ignorance!" some sage has aptly said. Don't we—the masses—find life too prosaic? Isn't the business of life taken too seriously? In what time there is left we gather up its adornments of culture? How rarely it is "art for art's sake!" Such little amenities belong to the circle of wealth and luxury, and for most of us are, therefore, unattainable. Not art for art's sake but art for life's sake! Think what it does for our emotions, our senses, imaginations and intellects when we let it dominate our lives! Such is the purpose of our splendid Drama League of today. To create a true appreciation of the fine arts is its reason for being.

MRS. McMILLIN BEAUTY.
On Tuesday a very delightful evening was spent at the Woman's club by the Drama League and its friends. In the presentation of Mrs. Benton McMillin, of Tennessee, a rare pleasure indeed was afforded.

The first-appeal came through her personal charm. Her beautiful face, figure and even to the minutest detail of dress and little feminine adornments breathed out the atmosphere of the artist absolutely. Obsessed was with her art. Such a setting of personality and charm could not be withstood. The house captivated immediately and were with her from the moment she appeared from behind the soft blue curtains, being a group of lovely pink roses, before she spoke the first word.

Kirkwood Civic League To Sponsor Play and Bazaar

A "Christmas Dream" will be enacted in Kirkwood school auditorium on Friday evening, December 4. The play was written by Miss Ona Norman and won first prize in the Kirkwood Civic league's literary contest this fall. The league is producing the play, which begins promptly at 8 o'clock. Admission will be 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children.

On Saturday morning, December 5, the league will open its annual Christmas bazaar in the auditorium at 10 o'clock. Mrs. A. I. Branham, as chairman of the doll committee, is conducting a contest in which she is offering as first prize a lovely unit of doll furniture. The second prize will be a beautiful doll handsomely dressed. There are several minor prizes offered in connection with this contest, which will close at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

At 11 o'clock Saturday morning the children will enjoy a musical program and the "cookie tree." Mrs. A. F. Almond is chairman of the art and crafts committee and will show a display of hand-embroidered pieces from the orient, as well as many artistic things representing home talent. Mrs. R. C. Warton and Mrs. John House are chairmen of the country store, and Mrs. J. L. Murphy and Mrs. Walton Stewart, chairmen of the up and apron committee. Mrs. R. S. Goulden will be in charge of the candy stand.

Flower Show.
The flower show in charge of Mrs. W. L. Hume and Mrs. H. J. Britton will also have canary birds for sale.

Mrs. Joseph Smith, assisted by Mrs. Fred Norris, Mrs. Carolyn, Mrs. A. B. Hargrave, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Branson, Mrs. Cassels, Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Seaman, Mrs. Suderth, Mrs. Hope, Mrs. Roquemore, Mrs. Nash, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Saunders and Mrs. Hamby will serve in the room all day Saturday.

There will be sandwiches, oyster stew, cakes, pies and hot drinks as well as soft drinks. At noon a plate lunch will be served for 25 cents. Mrs. M. S. Ransom will preside at the coffee urn.

Everybody in Kirkwood as well as others are asked to attend the play on Friday night and the bazaar on Saturday to help the league in its endeavor to assist all good causes. A part of the proceeds will go to swell the building fund for a clubhouse for Kirkwood.

Druid Hills Church To Hold Bazaar.

The ladies of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church will hold a Christmas bazaar on Friday, December 4, beginning at 10 o'clock, in the social hall of the church at 180 Ponce de Leon avenue. Many attractive articles suitable for Christmas gifts will be displayed. Home-made candies, cakes, jellies and pickles will also be on sale. From 5:30 to 8 o'clock a delicious turkey dinner will be served by Mrs. C. E. Phillips and her circle. All members of the church and their friends are given a cordial invitation to come.

TETLEY TEA ORANGE PEKOE BLEND In packages from 10c to $1.00

If YOU want to enjoy marvelous tea—made in the true English way—buy a package of Tetley Tea from your grocer. You'll find an old recipe for brewing real English tea printed on the package.

For more than a hundred years Joseph Tetley and Company have been purveyors of fine teas to all London. And the Tetley Tea you buy in America is the same favorite blend of England's most exacting connoisseurs!

Try Tetley's—and brew it the English fashion! What a treat 'twill be! So fragrant and satisfying... the second you taste it, you'll understand the Briton's love for his ever-welcome cup! Yet Tetley's costs no more than ordinary teas.

Bottled Sunshine

Heinz chefs capture the sunshine and bottle it in the form of Heinz Tomato Ketchup. Note the full tomato color of sun-ripened tomatoes. Taste the spices, bought where they grow in sunny lands. Thick with real-tomato goodness, rosy with real-tomato color, and abounding with real-tomato flavor, every bottle is a bottle of sunshine to cheer dull appetites.

Ways of Women in Athens

Who do you suppose did the shopping in ancient Athens? It was not the wives, or the daughters. Food and other articles were bought either by a slave or by the master of the household. Men were to be seen in the market-place at any hour of the day. Women were not supposed to go there at all.

The old Greek custom was for women to spend almost all their time at home. Upon a few days of each year, they were allowed to march in a religious procession; now and then they might call upon another; but the general rule was for them to stay at home. From the windows they might peep at the outside world, but they had little to do with active affairs.

Barred from full lives, it is no wonder that few Greek women ever did anything of note. They knew how to sew, to spin and to weave. They chatted with cullers. They told their children about gods and goddesses. When rich, they ordered their servants about. When poor, they did household work.

Because of the lack of exercise, many women were in poor health. Their cheeks were pale, and their skins were ugly. Yet there was a desire in them to look as well as possible. Many a woman put rouge upon her cheeks. Lampblack was used to darken the eyebrows, and white lead gave a false whiteness to the skin. All of this may have lent "beauty at a distance." When viewed, closely, it must have been ugly. On hot days, a nature sometimes played a trick. When the skin perspired, streaks of red reached down to the neck.

Jewelry was widely worn—especially earrings, necklaces and bracelets. These were of gold when the husband could afford that metal.

It may come as a surprise to hear that hair-nets were used in ancient Greece. Women wore nets—usually of a golden color—to hold their tresses in place. Oil was placed upon the hair, and it was sometimes dyed; but it was never bobbed.

Greek men were lords in their own houses, but we may judge that the wives were not always meek. In telling of a chat between two women, a Greek writer makes one of them poke

At the right you see one of the few Greek women who rose to fame. It is Sappho, the poetess, as an ancient artist pictured her.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

ROSILYN PAGE, 20-year-old daughter of an avocetous innkeeper, becomes disaffected with her life of idleness. Her restlessness is enhanced by a secret admiration and "hero-worship" for LANDIS RIDGWAY, good-looking, idle son of a once-wealthy family, who has been a frequent guest at the inn on the marshes of Long Island. Ridgway's name had been coupled with that of LYDIA HARBROOK, a beautiful but cold and calculating woman in Landis' past, and it is of her that Rosilyn is thinking with secret envy when Ridgway unexpectedly comes upon her out on the marshes where she has come for a breath of air after another day of hard and unappreciated work. The crucial Ridgway is amused at Rosilyn's serious outlook on life.

During the talk Landis tells Rosilyn of deep and sincere love that he has had to put aside. Her ready sympathy stirs him and he spontaneously kisses her, thus arousing unintentionally all the latent emotion in the girl's heart.

CHAPTER IV

An Evening Night.

As they neared the inn there was a sound of running footsteps and confusion, mingled with the heavy tramp of feet across the kitchen floor. A patch of light from the open door displayed three men carrying a heavy figure which sagged downwards.

"Father!" cried Rosilyn, breaking into a run. "Father—ling of the telephone cut into the room!"

They were laying him on the wooden settee under the old grandfather clock, his powerful body an inert and helpless mass, his face fixed to a sullen purple and great veins knotted on his forehead.

"Wide-eyed, she stared in startled horror at the apparition.

"Father!"

He was breathing noisily as Rupert Harbroke and the hired girl undid his collar. Van Vorst was at the telephone. "Hurry, operator! The nearest doctor! Page of the Mash Inn has had a stroke! Put through the call! Hello! That you, doctor? Yes, apoplexy! Hurry over!"

Her father's sudden illness seemed like an evil, terrifying dream to Rosilyn. There was nothing she could do but wait.

The men were wonderfully kind. When the doctor came, he made her go back in the living room, and Landis Ridgway stayed with her. Then, after an interminable time, there was the sound of measured tread as her father was carried to his room, and the doctor came to her and broke the news.

"It would be wrong to hope for his recovery. If he lives, he will be paralyzed and helpless. The brain, too, will be permanently affected. He will be stared at the speaker, stunned, but striving hard to comprehend the meaning of the statement.

"Hello? That you, doctor? Yes, apoplexy! Hurry over!"

Her father's sudden illness seemed like an evil, terrifying dream to Rosilyn. There was nothing she could do but wait.

The men were wonderfully kind. When the doctor came, he made her go back in the living room, and Landis Ridgway stayed with her. Then, after an interminable time, there was the sound of measured tread as her father was carried to his room, and the doctor came to her and broke the news.

"It would be wrong to hope for his recovery. If he lives, he will be paralyzed and helpless. The brain, too, will be permanently affected. He will be stared at the speaker, stunned, but striving hard to comprehend the meaning of the statement.

BEAUTY CHATS

BY EDNA M. FORBES.

FOR THE TEETH.

A few general directions about the care of the teeth might be useful today. I do not mean about keeping them clean; I'd rather give some directions for special cases.

Loose gums, for instance, can be tightened by rubbing them with tincture of myrrh. Some advise a strong solution of alum, but I prefer myrrh, which has the properties good for the teeth and which is often used in tooth pastes and powders. A weak solution of myrrh is also good for a mouth wash and gargle.

If the gums are loose of course you want to do more than this, you should see your dentist and have the teeth thoroughly cleaned. Some dentists call the process curing, because the tartar that is causing the loosening must be removed not only from the teeth, but from under the gums where it has worked. All of which sounds more uncomfortable than it is.

Here's something to remove tartar from the teeth, but only to be used on healthy teeth. It does not take the place of the twice-a-year cleaning by a dentist that everyone should have. Mix three drachms of citric acid with one of carbonate of soda. First clean the teeth with this, then rub some on and keep it on for a little time before washing it off.

Some cases of staining can be treated with finely powdered pumice. Dip a blunt end orangewood stick in water, then in the powder and rub over the stained parts.

A good ordinary tooth powder is made of precipitated chalk, with five per cent of carboric acid added. A druggist must mix this for you. Chalk is wonderful for whitening and polishing the teeth.

Mary Leslie G.—It is possible to shampoo the hair by using gasoline, but I do not think it preferable to the usual method in which soap and plenty of water are used. The gasoline cleansing would likely be a shift, at a time when a person has a cold or when necessity arises for a hasty shampoo. Great caution should also be exercised, to see that the gasoline is never used in a room with fire or inflammables; better use it out-of-doors. Gasoline has no special action upon white hair to keep it from turning yellow.

Alcohol and water are used sometimes to cleanse the hair and scalp if there is any danger of white hair becoming discolored. Usually a fine white soap such as castile, will be all that is necessary to preserve the shade of white or grey hair. It is needed, add a little bit of bluing to the last rinse—the sort used for laundry purposes.

Tomorrow—Polishing.

Edna Kent Forbes is now ready to fill a long-felt need on the part of her readers—that of supplying the most important of her excellent beauty hints in illustrated pamphlet form. To secure this valuable information you must address Miss Forbes in care of this paper, asking for her pamphlet, "Beauty," and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope (s.a.e.) and 10 cents in stamps.

Desserts Will Be Menu At Cooking School Today

"I have never conducted a cooking school in which the women seemed to be more interested nor in which there was more response than in the three-day session so far conducted in The Constitution's school," said Miss See Rice Wednesday afternoon at the close of the afternoon session of The Constitution's free cooking school at Taft hall.

The third day's session, despite the fact that the "Passion Play" was being shown in the large auditorium, was even more largely attended than the first two days' sessions.

The menu for Wednesday was the family dinner, and hundreds of Atlanta housewives apparently eager to see and to learn from Miss Rice and Miss Kimbrough, her assistant, very latest and most economical fashion for arranging such a meal, were present.

Baked Duck.
The dinner as prepared by Miss Rice, among other things, consisted of the baking of a duck with delicious garnishings around it, which practically made the meal, and all cooked at the same time. The garnishings were stuffed peppers, baked apples, and mushrooms. By preparing these and cooking them all at the same time, Miss Rice demonstrated to those who were present the economy of arranging such a meal.

Another feature of the Wednesday dinner was the showing of the varieties to which a simple one-egg cake could be used. The "Hawaiian delight" was the name of the delicacy arranged by the culinary experts, which had for its foundation the one-egg cake made delicious with fruits, such as oranges, pineapples, bananas, and whipped cream. Miss Rice explained to those present about the economy in using self-rising flour while demonstrating this cake, explained to them that she could get better volume from one-egg than from ordinary plain flours.

Both Miss Rice and Miss Kimbrough have made a number of friends among Atlanta housewives by the splendid and forceful way they have presented the work of the preparation of meals, and both are very much delighted with the great success of the school during the past three days. The interest manifested by the throngs of women who attended daily is clearly shown by the close attention given the speakers and the great number of notations made in their note-books.

Souvenirs Given Away.
Souvenirs are still being given out each day until 2:30 o'clock and some very handsome gifts are being given out each day. Among the things being given away each day is a white Hoosier kitchen cabinet.

At the close of each session of the school a number of ladies remain in the hall to ask questions and get many of the excellent recipes which Miss Rice is so competent to give, and to receive additional information on the culinary art.

Today's menu, beginning at 2 o'clock, will take up desserts—such as delicious sweetmeats as apple cake, ginger sauce, devil food cake, upside-down cake, pecan pie, and autumn pie, which will be prepared and baked in the presence of the attendants and the recipes given for each of them. The school is absolutely free and all Atlanta women interested in the cooking art are cordially invited to attend.

College Park Women Voters Meeting.

The College Park League of Women Voters held an interesting meeting on Tuesday, December 1, at Cox college, league headquarters, for the purpose of opening the questionnaire submitted to the six councilmen offering for election on December 7.

Two of the councilmen were present, in person to answer the questions asked in the questionnaire, these being W. B. McClary from the first ward, and T. Z. Deau of the second ward. Both of these men outlined progressive policies and expressed themselves as being strongly in favor of a rigid enforcement of the prohibition law as well as other laws.

Mr. McClary stated that if he went into office he would do so with no political debts to pay and that he would be free to act for the best interests of the town.

Both candidates impressed their audience very favorably. One candidiate ignored the questionnaire entirely, and the other three, Mr. Mount, Mr. Pitts and Mrs. Menton, sent in written answers to the questionnaire. All candidates apparently agree that schools are of first importance, though one candidate put streets first.

The College Park league is offering a real service to the community such as has never been rendered before in placing the candidates and their platforms before the people in order that the people may know how to cast a more intelligent vote.

Mrs. Moses Is Feted Visitor.

Mrs. Frank Calloway has as her guest at her home on Fourteenth street her sister, Mrs. Sanford Moses, of Washington, D. C.

On Friday, December 4, Mrs. Hollins Randolph will entertain informally at luncheon at her home on Peachtree road, honoring Mrs. Moses.

Following her visit in Atlanta, Mrs. Moses will be the guest of Mrs. Pinckney Waring in Savannah for a week before returning to Washington, where she will spend the winter.

CHAPTER XLIII.

"If we drive carefully we can make it," he concluded. "I'll take the wheel myself. You won't be afraid to trust yourself with me, shall you?"

"That's what I want to find out, Roddy. So many people are skeptical of me. I want to know if they're right—or wrong."

He laughed. "I shan't ask you to stay beyond the hour," he declared. "I'll need some time alone to try and figure you out. What's happened? Something has, I am certain."

"Nothing," she assured him. "Nothing, that is, that wasn't expected." A servant notified them that Made-moiselle's mount had been brought to the door before either of them realized that the hour had flown. She had induced Kenilworth to tell her some of the histories of the souvenirs which were strewn about the room in which their tea had been served, and she was enthusiastic about them.

When she went out to her horse she found that the groom also had brought a mount. Kenilworth nodded his approval. Joanna begged to be allowed to ride back to Amette alone, declaring her faith in the lights along the sea boulevard and her horse's instinct, but Kenilworth was firm.

"I should take you along myself," he explained, "but I shall want a look at the car. It's a stiff climb to La Turbie. I always want to be satisfied about my brakes."

At Villa Amette Joanna found Brandon awaiting her. "I have invited myself to dine," he explained, "and no one seems to object. Perhaps you will go along for an hour or two at the Casino, afterwards. There won't be a crowd and we can drop in for an act at the theater. Yvonne seems to have other plans for the evening."

"And so have I," she told him. "I'm going up La Turbie with Roddy. He's often wanted me to go up with him, and now I've promised."

"Sorry," she did not wait for the inevitable protest against climbing the narrow, winding road that ventured up the steep La Turbie mountain to the isolated resort above La Turbie village, but tripped on up the stairs. Brandon looked after her. Even women who were careless seldom went up La Turbie to dine or dance at the famous roadside stop the hill, unless in groups. The gayest of the hidden rendezvous along the coast, it was, in some respects, also the most forbidden. One always went up La Turbie but one did not, customarily, talk about it. After he had stood for a time in deep reflection, Brandon went on to the Amette veranda and peered out into the damp fog. Accustomed as he was to the Riviera he estimated the feel of it to his nostrils and his fingers. He appeared to gain, from his conclusions, some definite satisfaction.

He summoned a servant and inquired if Mademoiselle Coutant was still occupied in her boudoir. The maid reported that her mistress was, and would not be down for some little time. "You may tell her," he ordered, "that I shall not be staying to dine, if she won't mind."

A half hour later, when he dismissed the Amette car which had taken him back to Monte Carlo, Brandon summoned his valet and demanded that a suit of heavy tweeds be laid out for him. When the man had complied his master ordered:

"Go at once to the garage of the Italian in the Boulevard du Midi and ask for Antoine. If he is not at hand find out where he can be reached immediately. When you have him say that I want him to drive me, as soon as he can be ready, up the mountain. If he objects to the mist, tell him the thicker the fog the heavier his purse will be, and that much more for his men. Be sure, however, that it is Antoine himself you find. Otherwise return quickly."

On her way to her own boudoir Joanna stopped at Yvonne's. She, too, it seemed, was particularly painstaking at her evening's toilette. Her maids were flushed and nervous under the temper of their mistress. That they were having difficulties in pleasing her was evident from the piling of glittering gowns angrily tossed into heaps on the chaise longue, chairs and even tables. For a brief instant Joanna stood in the boudoir door, beneath the curtains that shut off Yvonne's sitting room; just long enough for her eyes to harden and narrow. Then she announced brightly that she would be going out with Kenilworth and that she hoped her running away would not interfere with any plan for the evening Yvonne might have made. Yvonne glanced at her sharply. She concluded, however, that there had been nothing hidden in Joanna's tone. "I have no other plans than a run into the Casino, perhaps," she said. "Betty Weymouth is having something or other tonight at her place, and I did promise that you and I would drop in, but that is not important. If you are running away by yourself I shan't trouble."

Joanna went over to the other woman and, stooping, lightly brushed her cheek with her lips. "Then I shan't be seeing you till tomorrow some time. It will be early, though for I shan't be able to sleep with tomorrow night so close." She stopped again at the door as she went out, to say, as if it were an afterthought: "Tonight I'm going up La Turbie—with Roddy. It will be great fun on the mountain tonight."

Yvonne turned quickly, but the girl had dropped the curtains behind her. She waved both of her maids away, when they bore down upon her with Joanna's departure, and sat quietly in a study. Presently she looked up and into the mirror before her. She examined the reflection she saw there with an intent, abstract scrutiny.

From her face her gaze wandered to her throat, around which hung her most magnificent pearls, and then to her gown—she had chosen a thing of pink in orchid hues that had come that day from her Paris couturier's. She shook her head, in response to her mental conclusions upon the ensemble the mirror reflected.

"You may take off the pearls," she commanded a maid, "and bring me diamonds. A lot of them. And I shall not wear this gown after all. It's too innocuous. I've something in mind; bring that." As if to herself she added, in a murmur that neither maid could overhear: "Burgundy and diamonds. If I'm not mistaken that will do the trick."

The Challenge.

Two cars crept upwards along the tortuous road that climbed the mountain. Kenilworth's red roadster, with its master at the wheel and Joanna settled snugly beside him in the single seat, glided silently from the streets of Monte Carlo, into the shrub-lined avenue that narrowed gradually until it became barely more than a path, sloping sharply toward the summit of the hill. Ahead of them Brandon, muffled in tweeds covered by a black domino, sat beside an evil, heavily-jowled Monegasque, who steered a much larger car than Kenilworth's. The purple mist, hued vaguely now that the twilight had gone, blotted out the lights of town and villa which, on moonlight nights, make this road up La Turbie one of the beautiful drives of Europe.

"One who climbs the hill tonight, Master, must have a steady nerve and a purpose," said the Monegasque, who guided the car in which Brandon rode. "If the purpose is worthy of the nerve, the effort is worth while." Brandon returned. "One man's object is a woman, another's may be gold. I imagine your nerve would not fail you in either case."

When Antoine had made a turn with a sureness and a knowledge of the bank which stamped him as familiar with the road he followed, he observed:

"There are few women in your world, master, for whom I'd take myself or my men into danger. Your women are playthings. That's why we don't let our imitate them."

The lamps of Kenilworth's roadster suddenly revealed another car picking its way slowly just ahead. Almost at the same moment a disc of pale yellow light shone through the mist to be immediately wiped away by the gray mass of cloud-like atmosphere.

"What was that?" Joanna asked. "The lighthouse at La Turbie village," he replied. "Queer necessity, isn't it? A lighthouse to warn travelers on a mountain road!"

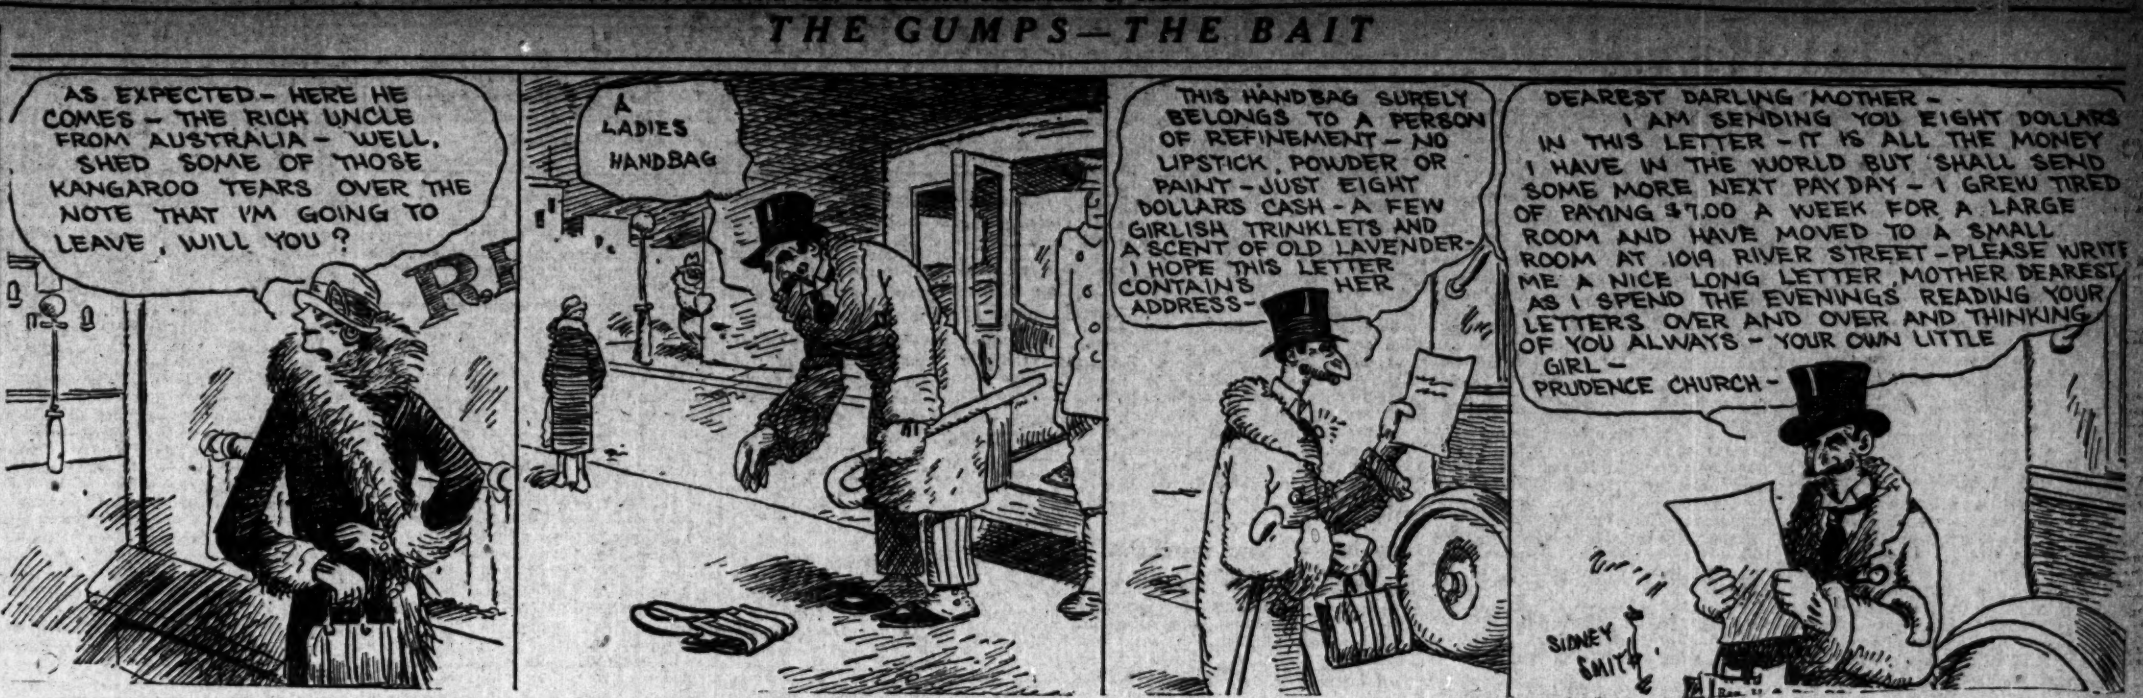

While the dim radiance cast its sickly illumination over them Kenilworth examined the girl who sat so close beside him. He saw that her white throat, on which a single great red ruby hung, was gleaming in the dampness against the contrast of her hair and the black of the gown she had chosen to wear. She had thrown back her head. Her wrap, of some plain clinging stuff, softened at the collar with a ripple of chinchilla, lay open. Kenilworth felt for the hand with his front wheels and brought the roadster to a stop. He reached over and gently drew the wrap together, bundling its collar close about the girl's neck.

"It's a treacherous atmosphere," he admonished her. "One can never foretell its next day's consequences." "Consequences are uncertain things to make into a prophecy, aren't they?" she asked. He studied her a moment, peering at her through the fog. He saw the vague shadows lurking in her eyes, shadows that came and then evaporated as if they were fugitives of the mist that had reached a haven of brown depths.

"Are you wondering," he asked, "what is to be the outcome of—well, of your invitation to a battle between us tonight? If you are, it is useless. There will be one thing or another: joyful, glorious, restful, beautiful; or, so far as I am concerned, empty and, in that event, meaningless to you."

Talk at five cents a word to over 100,000 of the best farm families in the southeast!
Offer them something they really need.
Make it snappy, straight-to-the-point—and the results will astonish you.

The Tri-Weekly Constitution carries the news of the world every-other-day into over 100,000 well-to-do farm homes.

It takes the place of a daily paper in these homes and gets careful and immediate reading.

Its classified columns are your opportunities.

The rate for one insertion—Tuesday—Thursday—or Saturday is five cents a word. Each initial and each number counts as a word.

William L. Hanley, Jr., Bradford, Pa., first vice president; William C. Koch, St. Paul, Minn., second vice president, and R. D. T. Hollowell, Chicago, secretary-treasurer.

Technical problems were discussed at the convention Wednesday, and directors of the associations met in the afternoon.

The Ohio and Western Pennsylvania division of the association were guests at a luncheon Wednesday at the Baltimore hotel. P. C. Hodges, president of the division, acted as toastmaster. Officers for the new year were elected as follows: L. B. Rainey, of Pittsburg, president, and C. W. McNeese, of Kettanning, Pa., vice president.

Following the luncheon, the entire party motored to Stone Mountain, joining other members of the association, under the charge of Fred Houser, of the convention and tourist bureau, at the mountain.
